Summary of Conflicts of Interest Policy

INTRODUCTION

SMBC UK, together with other SMBC entities operating in the EMEA region (together “SMBC Group” or “we”) is required to maintain and operate effective organisational and administrative arrangements with a view to taking all reasonable steps to identify, prevent, monitor and manage conflicts of interest.

SMBC Group have established a policy to safeguard our customers’ interests. The key information is summarised below, and more detailed information is available on request.

CONFLICTS OF INTEREST POLICY

SMBC Group is a multi-service banking group, which is present in many countries, providing its customers with a wide range of banking services. Like any financial services group, SMBC Group is potentially exposed to conflicts of interest in relation to various activities. However, the protection of our customers’ interests and ensuring we conduct our business in an honest and professional manner is our primary concern and so, our Policy sets out how we:

- will identify circumstances which may give rise to conflicts of interest entailing a material risk of damage to our customers’ interests;
- have established appropriate mechanisms and systems to manage those conflicts; and
- will maintain appropriate processes in an effort to prevent damage to our clients’ interests through identified conflicts.

Conflicts of interest are impossible to rule out. Our policy defines conflicts of interest as: situations where the competing interests of the firm, its employees and/or customers mean that SMBC Group cannot fairly discharge its obligations to a customer and/or the market.

SMBC Group takes into account whether itself or a person directly or indirectly linked by control to the firm is in one of the following situations:

- is likely to make a financial gain, or avoid a financial loss, at the expense of the customer;
- has an interest in the outcome of a service provided to the customer or of a transaction carried out on behalf of the customer, which is distinct from the customer’s interest in that outcome;
- has a financial or other incentive to favour the interest of another customer or group of customers over the interests of the customer; or
- receives or will receive from a person other than the customer an inducement in relation to a service provided to the customer, in the form of monetary or non-monetary benefits or services.

The measures we have adopted to manage identified conflicts are summarised below. We consider them appropriate to our efforts to take reasonable care that, in relation to each identified potential conflict of interest, we act impartially to avoid a material risk of harming the interests of customers and/or the market.

POLICIES AND PROCEDURES

We have adopted specific policies and procedures throughout our business activities designed to manage potential conflicts of interests. Our employees receive guidance and training in these policies and procedures, and they are subject to monitoring and review processes.

CONFIDENTIAL INFORMATION AND INHERENT CONFLICTS OF INTEREST

SMBC Group respects and expects its employees to respect the confidentiality of customer information and not use it other than for the original purposes it was intended for and not disclose it or use it inappropriately. SMBC Group operates a “Need to Know” approach aimed at complying with all applicable rules with respect to handling of such information.

SMBC Group structures its business to manage conflicts of interest through the maintenance of information barriers in accordance with its Information Barrier Policy. This is designed to restrict information flows between different areas of SMBC Group and to ensure unauthorised exchange of information between employees and business areas does not take place. Information Barriers and other measures are put in place to enable SMBC Group and its employees to carry out business on behalf of customers without being influenced by other information held within SMBC Group which may give rise to any actual or potential conflict of interest.

RESEARCH INDEPENDENCE

A conflict of interest may arise where the content of research reports or other public statements by a research analyst do not represent the analyst's genuinely held views as they may have been influenced by the interests of a particular business division of SMBC Group.

In order to manage conflicts of interest, SMBC Group has in place policies and procedures to safeguard the integrity of its research. No person(s) may place inappropriate pressure on a research analyst with respect to the content or timing of a research report or a public statement made by that analyst. The supervisory structure, reporting lines and compensation criteria for research and research analysts are designed to maintain the independence of research from other areas of SMBC Group.

In particular, research analysts are prohibited from undertaking any work that may conflict with their independence as a research analyst, including but not limited to, being prohibited from attending marketing pitches or participating in any investment banking related activities.

Research analysts are physically separated from other functions which may be reasonably be expected to conflict with their research functions.

Research reports contain specific regulatory disclosures in order to assist with the management of conflicts of interest. These include but are not limited to the disclosure of investment banking relationships and SMBC Group and/or affiliate holding disclosures.

SMBC Group has policies and procedures in place to ensure that research is distributed through the appropriate distribution channels.

EXECUTION / CLIENT ORDER HANDLING

SMBC Group requires employees to act honestly, fairly and professionally in accordance with the best interests of a customer, including when executing, receiving or transmitting orders on behalf of a customer. A customer's interests are protected by SMBC Group's Order Execution and Allocation Policies, which prohibit improper conduct by SMBC Group's traders and in relation to allocation of assets or financial instruments including prioritisation of customer orders over trading for our own account.

VENDORS AND THIRD PARTY REPRESENTATIVES

SMBC Group operates multiple systems, controls, policies and procedures to manage its interaction with vendors and third party representatives. SMBC Group carries out due diligence on vendors and third party representatives and has contractual arrangements in place to protect the interests of the SMBC Group and customers.

Conflicts of interest may arise with regards to vendors and third party representatives where, for example, an employee involved in the procurement or hiring process has a close relationship with a particular vendor / third party representative. Employees are expected to follow SMBC Group's Conflict of Interest Policy and identify, escalate and manage potential conflicts of interest accordingly.

REMUNERATION

Remuneration policies for SMBC Group's employees are set out to ensure appropriate governance to prevent remuneration structures which may incentivise an employee to act contrary to their responsibilities and regulatory requirements. The purpose of the policies is to align the commercial interests of SMBC Group and employees with the effective management of conflicts of interest, and with risk management objectives regarding conduct of business standards, in order to ensure customer interests are not adversely affected by SMBC Group's incentive or remuneration practices.

INDUCEMENTS

SMBC Group has established policies and procedures to meet its regulatory obligations to its customers, if in relation to the provision of an investment or ancillary service to the customer, SMBC Group pays or is paid any fee or commission, or provides or is provided with any non-monetary benefit (an "Inducement"). An Inducement is only permissible if it is designed to enhance the quality of the relevant service to the customer and does not impair compliance with SMBC Group's duty to act in the best interests of its customer. SMBC Group will ordinarily subject any Inducement to prior disclosure, where essential terms of the arrangements relating to the fee, commission or non-monetary benefit is provided.

PERSONAL ACCOUNT DEALING

To prevent conflicts arising from the use of information obtained from customers, and market abuse in general, all employees are subject to personal account dealing rules.

EMPLOYEES' OUTSIDE AFFILIATIONS

Our employees are subject to rules designed to avoid conflicts of interest with activities they undertake outside of the SMBC Group.

GIFTS AND ENTERTAINMENT

SMBC Group employees should not accept any gifts or entertainment other than those considered normal in their line of business. Excessive gifts or entertainment from customers is prohibited, and SMBC Group is committed to avoiding any gifts or entertainment giving rise to conflicts of interest.

CHARITABLE DONATIONS

SMBC Group has policies in place in relation to Charitable Donations in particular avoiding these where an employee is a key decision maker and has a relationship with a named charity.

DISCLOSURE

Where there is no other way of managing a conflict, or where the measures in place do not sufficiently protect customers' interests, the conflict shall be disclosed to allow customers to make an informed decision on whether to continue using SMBC Group's services in the situation concerned.

Disclosure will never be used as the sole action to mitigate the risk of damage to our customers' interests. Disclosure shall only be used as a measure of last resort, and shall be used only where the effective organisational and administrative arrangements established by SMBC Group to prevent or manage conflicts of interest are not thought to be sufficient to ensure, with reasonable confidence, that risks of damage to the interests of the customer will be prevented.

The disclosure shall include specific description of the conflicts of interest that arise and include the general nature and sources of conflicts of interest, as well as the risks to the customer that arise, in sufficient detail to enable that customer to take an informed decision with respect to the investment or ancillary service in the context of which the conflicts of interest arise.

DECLINING TO ACT

SMBC Group may decline to act for a customer in cases where it believes the conflict of interest cannot be effectively managed or controlled.

General Description of the Nature and Risks of Financial Instruments

This document contains a general description of the nature and risks of financial instruments. However, this document is not intended to be a complete listing of all financial instruments in which you may invest, nor is this document intended to provide an exhaustive description of all the risks that may be associated with all financial instruments. Rather, it is a description of the principal risks arising from those financial instruments, techniques and services that we generally offer to our clients. We may supplement these descriptions from time to time, including by providing information that relates to a particular financial instrument (for example in our marketing material).

In particular, the scope and content of the information provided takes into consideration (a) your categorisation as a professional or eligible counterparty client within the meaning of the Markets in Financial Instruments Directive and (b) given your categorisation our reasonable assessment of the scope and level of your knowledge and understanding of the nature and risks of financial instruments.

If you do not agree with your client categorisation please let us know as we will need to revisit our client relationship, the nature of the services that we provide to you and the information that we must provide to you with respect to the nature and risks of financial instruments. Similarly, please let us know if you do not understand any of the contents of the descriptions below.

(A) General Introduction

You should not make an investment unless you are prepared to bear the risk of loss arising from that investment.

All financial instruments involve a certain degree of risk and even low-risk financial instruments and strategies contain an element of uncertainty and past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance. The value of an investment and the income received from an investment can go down as well as up, and investors may not get back the amount that they invested. There can be no assurance that expected or targeted returns for any investor will be achieved. Even if a financial instrument performs as anticipated, changes in exchange rates or taxation may have an adverse effect on the price or value of, or income received from, the financial instrument. Investment returns may be constrained by charges levied and inflation may reduce the value of investments. Also, financial instruments (even those which share similar characteristics) may be exposed to different risks, different combinations of risk, or may exhibit or be exposed to those risks to different degrees. Furthermore, where an investor's portfolio holds two or more financial instruments, the aggregate risk of the portfolio may be different in nature or extent from the risks of the individual financial instruments of which the portfolio is comprised.

As set out in the descriptions below, certain principal risks typically impact particular financial instruments. However, they may be subject to other risks, for example, because of any specific features of the particular financial instrument. Further, many of the risks described below apply generally to financial instruments and individual financial instruments may be impacted by multiple risks. We may, from time to time, make available to you financial instruments that have additional terms and conditions. These may be included in various types of documents, including (without limitation) documents referred to as a "final terms" or "terms and conditions". These documents may contain additional descriptions of risk that apply to the particular financial instrument and it is important that you read these. The terms and conditions of those financial instruments may also give rise to other risks and the relevant financial instrument to which they apply may have features that are not commonly found in the relevant category of financial instrument.

The terminology used to describe different types of financial instruments may not be used uniformly or consistently, may differ between markets or countries /jurisdictions, and may have different meanings in different contexts (for example, for the purposes of financial services regulation and taxation). The precise features (and, therefore, the risks) of a particular financial instrument will depend on the specific terms and conditions that apply to that financial instrument. A financial instrument might have peculiar features that distinguish it from similarly categorised financial instruments and those distinctions may only become apparent in certain market conditions or upon the occurrence of certain events that may be issuer-specific and therefore may result in unexpected outcomes. For example, without limitation, broad discretion may be granted to the issuer, counterparty or another person to (a) amend the terms and conditions of the financial instrument; (b) determine the economic outcome (which may include unilateral termination); (c) determine the value of the financial instrument; or (d) determine whether and in what form collateral must be provided (including the value of such collateral). Therefore, it is important to review and understand those terms before making any investment.

Certain financial instruments may be highly speculative and may be suitable only for experienced and financially sophisticated investors who are willing to bear the risks associated with such investments, which can include the loss of all or a substantial portion of any the value of or all such investments. Investors should ensure that they fully understand the features of the financial instrument and the risks involved, before deciding whether or not to invest in any such financial instrument.

Unless the context otherwise requires, the terms “investments” and “financial instruments” may be used interchangeably. Note: (i) The following risk disclosures relate to business that we usually undertake with clients and not to all of those we are permitted to carry on investment business in. (ii) Not all of the products are offered by each of our entities listed above.

(B) Types of Financial Instrument

(1) Money Market Instruments

Money market instruments are a class of short term instruments that are normally dealt on the money market and include treasury bills, certificates of deposit and commercial papers (including euro commercial paper). Money market instruments are similar to other fixed income securities where the investor becomes a creditor of the issue of the security. They have maturities at issuance of 397 days or less. They have a nominal value which should be returned to you when the investment matures at the end of its term. However if instruments are sold before reaching maturity a capital gain or loss may be realised.

A certificate of deposit is a promissory note issued by a bank in exchange for a deposit. Holders of the certificate of deposit have restricted access to the funds deposited until the maturity date, at which point the funds are returned with interest. The major risk of purchasing a certificate of deposit in the money markets, other than counterparty risk, is that there is greater uncertainty associated with holding the investment for a long period of time and the holder of the certificate foregoes the opportunity to invest in other instruments.

Commercial paper (including euro commercial paper) is an unsecured short-term debt instrument issued by a company to meet short-term liabilities. The maturity date on commercial paper is normally close to its issue date. Commercial paper is typically issued at a discount (for lower interest rates). Commercial paper is often unsecured meaning that counterparty default risk is higher than with other debt securities. As with certificates of deposit, there are risks associated with holding a more illiquid asset than a debt or equity security – however, the short maturity period for commercial paper mitigates this risk. Treasury bills are short-term debt instruments backed by governments with a maturity of less than one year. The principal and interest rates of bills are paid to investors cumulatively at the maturity date; as such investors do not receive regular interest payments. Bills are issued at relatively low value and are therefore accessible to a wide range of investors. However, due to their low risk they offer low returns and do not generate steady cash flows.

Money market instruments are exposed to a number of risks, including liquidity risk, interest rate risk, credit risk and FX risk.

(2) Derivatives

There are many different types of derivative financial instruments, with different characteristics and subject to different conditions. As mentioned elsewhere, derivatives are sometimes combined or embedded in other financial instruments. Derivatives are complex instruments and individual transactions may comprise more than one derivative and may be tailored to the particular requirements of the parties. Certain of the risks arising from the use of derivatives may depend on whether the derivative is exchange traded or over-the-counter (“OTC”).

The main categories of derivatives are: options, futures (forwards) and swaps. The term “contract for difference” (used, in particular, in the UK) is sometimes used to describe certain types of cash settled derivatives transaction. The terminology used to describe the different types of derivatives may not be used uniformly or consistently, may differ between markets or countries and may have different meanings in different contexts (for example, for the purposes of financial services regulation and taxation). Derivatives are suitable only for sophisticated investors and investors should carefully review all the terms and conditions of the derivative transaction to ensure they have a comprehensive understanding of their rights and obligations and of how the derivative may function in different market conditions.

OPTIONS

An option, in this context, is simply the right to buy or sell an underlying asset. Options are broadly divided into puts and calls. Simplistically:

- (a) a call option gives the purchaser (holder) the right to buy an underlying asset from the seller (writer) of the option, and imposes the obligation on the seller of the option to sell the underlying asset to the option purchaser; and
- (b) a put option gives the purchaser the right to sell an underlying asset to the seller of the option, and imposes the obligation on the seller of the option to buy the underlying asset from the option purchaser.

Instead of the physical delivery of an underlying asset, an option may give the purchaser the right to receive a cash amount (for example, an index option) or the right to require the seller to enter into another transaction with the purchaser (for example, a “swaption”, which is an option to enter into a swap transaction). The terms of the option will typically specify, as well as the identity and amount of the underlying asset, the price at which that asset will be purchased/sold (the “strike price”), whether it is physically or cash settled, the date(s) on which the option may be exercised (by the purchaser) and the date on which the option expires (after which the purchaser can no longer exercise the option). The purchase price payable by the purchaser for the option is called the “premium” and it is usually (but not necessarily) paid up front when the option is purchased.

Buying options generally involves less risk than selling (writing) options as the purchaser can allow the option to lapse (i.e., not exercise the option). For example, in the case of a call option, a purchaser of an option would likely not exercise the option if the market price of the underlying asset is less than the strike price.

However, selling (writing) options involves considerably more risk. The seller of an option assumes the legal obligation to purchase or sell the underlying asset (or pay the cash settlement amount) if the option is exercised, regardless as to the difference between the strike price and the market price prevailing at the time of exercise. In the case of call options, if the seller of the option does not own the underlying asset, the seller is exposed to unlimited risk as the seller will need to purchase the underlying asset in the market (or, as relevant, pay the cash settlement amount) and the market price may be significantly higher than the strike price. This risk could be increased further by other factors, for example, if the underlying asset is illiquid. If the option seller owns the underlying asset (a “covered call”), the risk is reduced.

The maximum loss arising from the purchase of an option is, essentially, the cost of that option (also known as the premium) plus any associated commissions and other transaction-related costs.

If an option is not exercised before expiry, in accordance with its terms, it may expire worthless.

Accordingly, it is important to identify the applicable terms for exercise, which may include specific provisions relating to time and method of notification. Failure to observe those terms may invalidate any purported exercise of the option.

FUTURES

Futures involve the obligation to make, or to take, delivery of the underlying asset at a future date, or in some cases the payment of a cash amount. Futures transactions share the characteristics of forward transactions however, historically, the term “futures” has typically been used to describe standardised exchange traded transactions (whether physically or cash settled) and the term “forwards” has typically referred to individually negotiated over-the-counter physically settled transactions, in both cases where the delivery date is for a future date that is beyond the date on which a “spot” transaction for the relevant underlying asset commonly settles. However, this terminology is not consistently applied and, for example, currency forwards may be structured as “non-deliverable forwards” meaning that the relevant currencies in the currency pair are not exchanged on the settlement date. Where a future is physically settled, an investor who does not want to make or take physical delivery must close out the position (typically by entering into an equal and opposite position) before any applicable cut-off time. There can be no assurance that it will be possible to close out the position on advantageous terms or at all.

SWAPS

This term typically describes a financial instrument under which the parties agree to exchange certain cash flows based on the value of, or return from, one or more underlying assets or other reference points (for example, an index or interest rate). Parties are exposed to the market risk of the relevant underlying.

The term “contract for difference” (or “CFD”) is generally used to describe a contract between two parties, typically described as “buyer” and “seller”, stipulating that the seller will pay to the buyer the difference between the value of an asset (often a share or an index) on one date and its value at a subsequent date (if the difference is negative, then the buyer pays the difference to the seller). In effect CFDs are financial derivatives that allow traders to take advantage of prices moving up (long positions) or prices moving down (short positions) on underlying financial instruments and are often used to speculate on those markets.

The terms “swap” and “contract for difference” are sometimes used interchangeably to refer to the same financial instrument.

Some examples of swaps include the following:

- Interest rate swaps – Typically, these swaps involve the exchange of cash flows based on two or more interest rates, where the cash flows exchanged are calculated by reference to a notional principal amount. For example, one party might pay the other a floating or variable rate of interest (based on the notional principal amount) in return for the payment by the other party of a fixed rate of interest (based on the notional principal amount). Companies use interest rate swaps to alter their interest rate exposure. A company paying floating interest rate can obtain fixed rate exposure by entering into a swap. Therefore, the company can enter into a swap in which they receive floating rate and pay the fixed rate.
- FX/currency swaps – FX swaps are risk management tools that can be utilised in order to hedge FX risks and exposures generated through commercial activity. These products allow users to guarantee future cash-flows and remove the risks presented by market fluctuations for known future revenues or expenditures. Under a bilateral swap contract a party simultaneously borrows one currency and lends another in order to hedge against unfavourable movements in exchange rates. A cross currency swap is, similarly to an FX swap, a bilateral agreement, where two parties exchange interest payments and principal denominated in two different currencies. Depending on the market conditions at inception, the bid/offer spread of an FX or currency swap can vary. When market circumstances are negative the spread will be wider and vice versa when market circumstances are positive. During the lifetime of a product, the market conditions (positive or negative) will be reflected in the way the contract is marked to market. Whilst trading FX swaps companies can hedge against FX risk, inflation risks and interest rate risk but if interest rate developments differ from expectations, there is a risk that choosing a different strategy would have led to better financial results. In the event of (interim) termination, one party may be faced with an amount payable to the other party close to/equal to the negative market value of the FX swap taking into account normal market conditions.
- Inflation linked swaps – An inflation linked swap is a contract under which risk is transferred from one party to another. Party 1 pays a fixed cash flow to party 2, while party 2 pays a floating cash flow which is linked to inflation. The cash flow paid is linked to a notional amount, however the notional is not exchanged.
- RPI swap – An RPI swap is a swap which involves an exchange of interest calculated by reference to the Retail Prices Index (RPI) and another reference rate (e.g. SONIA). This swap allows parties to hedge the risk of inflation being lower or higher than expected.

OTC derivatives, such as the swaps described above, are typically documented under industry standard terms (for example, the ISDA Master Agreement) which contain key provisions governing the contractual relationship between the parties, including their respective rights, liabilities and obligations. These terms (which, in fact, comprise a number of documents, including a master agreement, a schedule, relevant definitions and the individual confirmation containing specific provisions relating to the particular transaction) govern how the derivative will operate in different circumstances, including where there is a market disruption event impacting the relevant underlying asset. In these circumstances, the investor may have no ability to influence the outcome. Although the terms and conditions used by banks, investment firms and other participants for these transactions may be based on industry standard terms, they may be tailored by the particular bank, investment firm or other participant and an investor may have limited ability to make amendments. These are often very technical and complex documents and the parties should ensure that they have appropriate expertise to review and understand them and/or seek independent advice before entering into a transaction.

Collateral (sometimes referred to as “margin”) is an important feature of derivatives transactions. This relates to the “contingent liabilities” that typically arise under a derivatives transaction and where one or both parties are exposed to the credit (or performance) risk of the other party. Collateral is used to manage the credit exposure between the parties to the derivatives transaction until the obligations of the parties have been completed. The risks arising from the provision of collateral are described further below.

(3) Structured Deposits

Our structured product range is currently limited to structured deposits. We also offer dual currency investments, known as option linked premium deposits. These are not structured deposits and have their own risk warning set out at 4. below.

- Structured deposits – These are deposits where the interest rate or return is derived from or based on an underlying asset or index (similar to a structured product). The deposits are placed with a credit institution (such as a bank or building society) and, therefore, the investor is subject to the credit risk of that credit institution as well as other risks, principally the market risk relating to the underlying asset or index. The terms of structured deposits may prohibit termination prior to the scheduled maturity or provide that such termination can only occur upon payment of an exit fee that may not be a fixed amount or a percentage of the original amount invested. All structured deposits are capital protected but may be affected by withdrawal before maturity.

(4) Dual currency investments

Dual currency investments – The dual currency investment (also known as option linked premium deposit) allows a client to earn interest over a flexible term with the added feature that if the prevailing spot market is at a pre-defined rate on maturity the deposit will convert. In this scenario the client will, on expiry, be returned their deposit plus interest in an alternate currency. Dual currency investments are “capital at risk” investments and are subject to the following main risks:

- Market risk – This can materialise due to macroeconomic factors and may have an impact on a particular instrument or more broadly on currency markets as a whole. The client deposit is subject to a potential conversion dependent upon pre-defined market conditions on expiry.
- Credit risk – When investing in a dual currency investment the client is taking on a credit risk to the deposit taking bank. In the event that bank should default on its obligations or become insolvent a client may receive back less, in original currency terms, than originally deposited. This is dependent upon market conditions on expiry.

Dual currency investments are also subject to volatility risk if there are adverse market conditions and this can increase market risk. Levels of volatility will depend on the currency pairs which are relevant for each dual currency deposit. Major currencies may be more stable than emerging market currencies.

FX risk arises when investing in dual currency investments. Fluctuations in the market will have a direct impact on the outcome for the client. Liquidity risk may also arise. FX markets are typically highly liquid but this may depend on the currency pairs selected.

(C) Principal Investment Risks

This section contains a list of the principal categories of general investment risks that are typically associated with financial instruments. Not all of these risks will apply to all financial instruments and different financial instruments (including those which share similar characteristics) may exhibit some or all of these risks to different degrees.

(1) Issuer Risk

This refers to the risks associated with the particular issuer of a particular financial instrument. The value of a financial instrument may decline because of a number of reasons, which directly relate to the issuer, such as (without limitation) insolvency, management performance, the availability and/or cost of financing, financial leverage, reputation, and reduced demand for the issuer’s goods or services, as well as the historical and prospective earnings of the issuer and the value of its assets. The issuer may also fail to perform its obligations under the terms and conditions applicable to the financial instrument. Issuer risk also relates to the risk arising from corporate events such as mergers, acquisitions and takeovers (including the failure to execute any such transaction), as well as other events that may result in the dilution of any ownership interest of an investor in the issuer.

(2) Credit / Counterparty Risk

Credit (or counterparty) risk arises from the inability or unwillingness of a counterparty, issuer or other relevant person (for example, a custodian or broker) to perform their contractual obligations, or the perception or expectation that this may be the case or may occur in the future. As such, there is some overlap with issuer risk, described above.

For example, an investor will be exposed to the credit risk of (a) the parties with whom it enters into transactions (including derivatives transactions and stock loans); (b) any person with whom it deposits its assets or funds or to whom it transfers collateral; (c) the issuer of a fixed income security; and (d) any person who owes monies to the investor.

This risk may arise in the course of the settlement of a transaction, for example, where the purchase price for a financial instrument has been paid but where the financial instrument has not been delivered.

(3) Credit Ratings Risk

Credit ratings are opinions about credit risk. They express an opinion about the ability and willingness of an issuer, such as a company or state or government, to meet its financial obligations in full and on time. Credit ratings can also speak to the credit quality of an individual financial instrument, such as a corporate or government bond, and the relative likelihood that the issuer may default. Credit ratings are not an absolute measure of default probability. Since there are future events and developments that cannot be foreseen, the assignment of credit ratings is not an exact science. Credit ratings are not intended as guarantees of credit quality or as exact measures of the probability that a particular issuer or debt issue will (or will not) default.

As they are opinions, credit ratings assigned by different ratings agencies (or other ratings providers) may differ in respect of the same issuer or financial instrument.

(4) Interest Rate Risk

Interest rates may fluctuate significantly at any time and from time to time. As a result of such fluctuations, the value of financial instruments may increase or decrease in value. For example, when interest rates increase, fixed income instruments will generally decline in value. Long-term fixed income securities or instruments will normally have more price volatility because of this risk than short-term fixed income instruments. A wide variety of market factors can cause interest rates to rise, including central bank monetary policy, rising inflation and changes in general economic conditions.

(5) Market Risk

The term “market risk” is sometimes used generically to describe the systematic risk to which investors may be exposed and which may result in losses due to factors affecting financial markets generally, or particular geographies, countries, sectors or issuers. As such, many of the risks described elsewhere in this document may comprise components of market risk.

The value of a financial instrument may decline due to general market conditions which are not specifically related to a particular issuer, such as real or perceived adverse economic conditions, changes in the general outlook for corporate earnings, changes in interest or currency rates, inflation, adverse investor sentiment generally and the forces of supply and demand. The value of financial instruments may also be impacted by market disruptions and by the activities of other market participants which influence prices.

The value of particular financial instruments may be impacted by the price or value of other financial instruments (whether or not there is a direct relationship with those other financial instruments); and values may go up or down, sometimes rapidly or unpredictably.

(6) Currency Risk

This refers to the risks relating to the currency in which the financial instrument is denominated. Where a financial instrument is denominated in a currency that is different from the investor’s “base currency” (this generally refers to the currency in which the performance of the portfolio is measured and is typically, but not always, the currency in which the investor is located), the investor is exposed to the risk that the relative value of the two currencies (or exchange rate) may deviate over time. So, although the value of the financial instrument might increase when measured in the currency of denomination, when measured in (or converted into) the base currency, the investor might experience a loss. This would happen where the currency in which the financial instrument is denominated falls in value relative to the base currency. This risk also arises where the investor hold funds in a currency other than the base currency.

Currency rates may fluctuate significantly, including over short periods of time, for a number of reasons, including changes in interest rates; intervention (or the failure to intervene) by foreign governments; central banks or supranational entities such as the International Monetary Fund; or by the imposition of currency controls or other political developments.

Currency risk also refers to the risk that events may occur that adversely impact the currency in which a financial instrument is denominated. For example, a government may impose exchange controls (which may artificially impact the applicable exchange rate) or other restrictions on the repatriation of the proceeds of sale.

(7) Legal and Regulatory Risk

Changes in, or the introduction of new, rules, regulations and laws (including with respect to particular categories of financial instruments, issuers, and taxation) or the way in which they are applied or interpreted may impact your financial instruments and/or the implementation of your investment strategies.

Investors may be exposed to the risks arising under the rules, laws and regulations of jurisdictions other than the jurisdiction in which the investor is located and/or with which the investor is familiar. For example, where you invest in financial instruments that are subject to the rules, laws and regulations in other jurisdictions and/or you invest in financial instruments traded in markets in other jurisdictions, it is important to recognise that those laws and regulations may differ from those with which you are familiar and may have unexpected consequences.

Further, such rules, regulations and laws may be subject to inconsistent or arbitrary application or interpretation and may be changed with retroactive effect. Both the independence of judicial systems and their immunity from economic, political or nationalistic influences remain largely untested in many countries. Judges and courts in many countries might not be experienced in the areas of business and corporate law. Legislatures might revise established law solely in response to economic or political pressure or popular discontent. There is no guarantee that an overseas investor would obtain a satisfactory remedy in local courts in case of a breach of local laws or regulations or a dispute over ownership of assets. An investor may also encounter difficulties in pursuing legal remedies or in obtaining and enforcing judgments in overseas courts. This may be exacerbated by the arrangements under which financial instruments are held in custody; for example, if an investor's ownership interest is not recognised in the overseas jurisdiction where the arrangements for holding the relevant financial instrument involve a nominee.

Governments or their agencies may also acquire distressed assets from financial institutions and acquire ownership interests in those institutions. The implications of government ownership and disposition of these assets will vary, and such a program may have positive or negative effects on the liquidity, valuation and performance of an investor's holdings.

(8) Liquidity Risk

Liquidity risk exists when particular financial instruments are difficult to purchase or sell (e.g., if they are not publicly traded and/or have no market that is currently available or may become less liquid in response to market developments). This can reduce a portfolio's returns because the portfolio may be unable to transact at advantageous times or prices, or at all. Investments that are illiquid or that trade in lower volumes may be more difficult to value.

Liquidity risk may be attributable to a number of factors including: the particular terms and conditions of the instrument; legal, regulatory or contractual restrictions on their sale or transfer; the fact that the instrument is not publicly traded (for example, because it is not listed on an exchange); or in response to market developments or adverse investor perceptions. Liquidity risk may arise where ownership in a particular financial instrument is concentrated in one or a small number of investors, and this may impact the value of the instrument. Liquidity risk may also arise as the result of the reduced number and capacity of traditional market participants to make a market in the relevant financial instrument. Additionally, market participants may attempt to sell holdings at the same time as the investor, and there may be insufficient liquidity to accommodate all these intended sales. These factors may exist at the time of investment or may arise subsequently.

Certain financial instruments may be intended to be held until maturity. Although the issuer or another person (who may be associated with the issuer) may agree to act as market maker in the relevant financial instrument, they may place limitations on their responsibilities to make a market (for example, in certain market conditions). Also, if there is only one market maker (and, particularly if that person is associated with the issuer), it will be difficult to verify whether the price offered by the market maker represents fair value.

(9) Call (or Redemption) Risk

Certain financial instruments, in particular fixed income securities (including hybrid investments such as structured products), will be subject to the risk that the issuer may exercise its right to redeem the security earlier than expected (a "call"). Issuers may redeem or call the financial instrument prior to the original scheduled maturity for a number of reasons (e.g., declining interest rates, changes in credit spreads and improvements in the issuer's credit quality and, in the case of structured products or hybrid investments, changes in the reference price of the relevant asset, reference rate or index). If an issuer redeems or calls a financial instrument before the original scheduled maturity, the investor's objective in acquiring that financial instrument may be frustrated and may receive a return that is lower than the return the investor would receive at maturity. The investor may not realise the full anticipated investment returns and may be forced to reinvest in lower-yielding financial instruments or financial instruments with greater credit risks or other less favourable features.

(10) Hedging Risk

The execution of certain strategies are intended to reduce (or “hedge”) one or more risks relating to one or more financial instruments held in the investor’s portfolio or certain risks in the portfolio as a whole. There can be no assurance that such risk reduction techniques will be successful or, indeed, that we will be able to execute the relevant transactions.

Hedging transactions (for example, through the use of derivatives) may not correlate perfectly with, or may be more sensitive to market events than, the exposure that is being hedged. Furthermore, hedging transactions will involve additional risks, for example (in relation to derivatives transactions) credit risk to the counterparty. Therefore, not only might hedging transactions fail to accomplish their objective, they may also result in additional or increased risks.

Hedging transactions (such as derivatives) typically have a defined termination or maturity date and this maturity date might not coincide with the period of time for which the underlying financial instrument is held. When the hedging transaction terminates, it might not be possible to execute a similar hedging transaction or an investor may only be able to enter into a similar hedging transaction on terms that are less advantageous.

(11) Leverage or Gearing Risk

Leverage and gearing describe various techniques and investment strategies that are typically intended to generate returns through increased exposure to financial instruments or other assets (including currencies and indices). Examples of these techniques include the following: borrowing (often using a portfolio of financial instruments as collateral) and investing the proceeds in financial instruments; and using derivatives to gain an (increased) exposure to a financial instrument, greater than the exposure that would be achieved by purchasing the financial instrument directly. These techniques and strategies may be applied to one or more financial instruments or may be embedded in a financial instrument (for example, a structured product or a hedge fund).

These techniques and strategies can magnify both profits and losses in a financial instrument or portfolio, even where there is a relatively small movement in the relevant underlying asset(s). Depending on the technique or strategy used and (as applicable) the terms and conditions of the financial instrument in which the technique or strategy is embedded, the amount of losses incurred by an investor could result in the loss of the entire amount committed. In certain circumstances, the investor may be liable to make further payments: for example, where an investor has borrowed money secured against a portfolio of financial instruments and uses the proceeds of the loan to make further investments, the investor would be liable to repay the loan even in the event of the entire loss of value of the portfolio.

(12) Non-Domestic Market Risk

Where an investment is made outside the investor’s domestic (or home) market, the investor will be exposed to the risks of that market, as well as practical issues, for example relating to local language considerations. The precise nature and extent of those risks will be specific to that market and the following describes, in general terms, some of the risks that might be encountered.

Even in developed markets, the laws, rules, regulations, trading conventions and practices may differ from those with which the investor is familiar. For example, the nature and extent of investor protections, the level of transparency (including with respect to accounting, auditing and reporting standards) and relevant corporate governance standards may be different.

Further, the rights typically associated with particular financial instruments, including with respect to the exercise of voting rights, may differ and these may be impacted by the arrangements under which financial instruments are held in custody. For example, an investor’s ownership interest may not be recognised in the overseas jurisdiction where the arrangements for holding the relevant financial instrument involve a nominee. Information relating to the financial instruments distributed from the issuer may not be received on a timely basis or at all. This may also impact the processing of corporate actions.

(13) Tax Risk

Dividends, interest and other amounts payable (including, without limitation, principal amounts) with respect to financial instruments and other funds held by an investor may be subject to taxes, including withholding taxes. The effect of taxation will reduce the return on the relevant financial instrument. Where tax is withheld (which may be effected by a tax authority in another jurisdiction), an investor may be able to recover the amount withheld or otherwise offset part or all of the amount withheld against the investor’s tax liability. However, there can be no assurance that any such recovery will be successful. The location of the custodian (or its nominee) may also impact the tax treatment and (where applicable) the process for recovery of tax withheld.

Tax laws and regulations, and their interpretation and application, may change from time to time, including with retroactive effect. As a result of such changes, investors might incur unanticipated tax liabilities and/ or may lose tax benefits previously attaching to particular financial instruments. As a result, the actual investment return may differ (potentially, significantly) from the expected return. Unless otherwise agreed in writing, we are not responsible for providing tax advice and are not responsible for and provide no guarantee or assurance with respect to the tax treatment of any financial instrument.

(14) Bail-In Risk

This is the risk that the financial instruments of certain issuers, including banking institutions, building societies, investment firms and certain banking group companies, may be subject to action taken by governmental, banking and/or other regulatory authorities, for example to address banking crises pre-emptively, whether or not the express terms of such financial instruments anticipate such action. The relevant authorities may have broad discretion on the action that they may take and their powers may be extended in response to particular events. Examples of the actions that they may be able to take could include the following:

- (a) The reduction, including to zero, of the principal of the fixed income instruments of such issuers;
- (b) The conversion of such fixed income instruments into equity securities or other instruments of ownership (resulting in the dilution of ownership interests of existing shareholders);
- (c) The variation of the terms, including with respect to maturity, of such fixed income instruments; and
- (d) Shareholders being divested of their shares.

In addition to bail-in risk, certain issuers (principally, banking institutions) may issue a hybrid form of subordinated fixed income security known as contingent convertible securities (“CoCos”). These financial instruments are intended to either convert into equity or have their principal written down upon the occurrence of certain “triggers” linked to regulatory capital thresholds or where the issuer’s regulatory authorities question the continued viability of the entity as a going concern. There may be broad discretion conferred on the issuer with respect to the determination as to whether any of these triggers have occurred and the specific features and characteristics of CoCos may vary significantly, as they are typically tailored to the particular issuer and its regulatory requirements. Therefore, it is particularly important to review the relevant terms and conditions. Some additional risks associated with CoCos are:

- (a) Typically, there is no stated maturity and the coupon is fully discretionary. This means coupons can potentially be cancelled at the issuer’s discretion or at the request of the relevant regulatory authority in order to help the issuer to absorb losses;
- (b) If the CoCos are converted into the issuer’s underlying equity securities following a conversion event, each holder will be subordinated due to their conversion from being the holder of a debt instrument to being the holder of an equity instrument;
- (c) The market value of the CoCos will fluctuate based on unpredictable factors including, without limitation:
 - (i) the creditworthiness of the issuer and/or fluctuations in such issuer’s applicable capital ratios;
 - (ii) supply and demand for the CoCos;
 - (iii) general market conditions and available liquidity; and
 - (iv) economic, financial and political events that affect the issuer, its particular market or the financial markets in general.

(15) Unlisted (and Non-Exchange Traded) Financial Instruments Risk

Financial instruments that are not traded or listed on an exchange may present greater risks. For example, these may include increased liquidity risk and lower levels of transparency with respect to accounting, auditing and reporting standards. It may also be more difficult to assess the value of such financial instruments; bid and offer prices might not be quoted, and even where they are, it may be difficult to establish a fair price.

(16) Collateral Risk

Financial instruments and/or strategies relating to financial instruments may involve exposure to the risks associated with the provision of collateral (sometimes referred to as “margin”). For example, if an investor enters into a derivatives transaction, the investor may be required to provide the counterparty with collateral to mitigate the risk that the investor might fail to perform the obligations arising under the derivatives transaction and, depending on the nature of the derivatives transaction and changes in the value of the underlying asset, the investor may be required to deposit additional collateral. Failure to provide collateral may result in the termination of the relevant transaction and the investor will remain liable for any remaining losses.

Please note that the arrangements for the provision of collateral are typically not mutual or bilateral. This means that the investor might not receive collateral in circumstances where the investor is exposed to the counterparty to the transaction, but will be required to deliver collateral in circumstances where the counterparty is exposed to the investor.

Where collateral is provided, the recipient of the collateral may reserve the right to return “equivalent” collateral rather than the same collateral. In many circumstances, this right is primarily intended to address issues relating to the delivery of collateral that is “fungible” in nature. Assets are fungible where they are equivalent and, therefore, interchangeable. For example, ordinary shares of the same issuer are fungible with one another. However, those rights may entitle the counterparty to return other assets and/or cash.

Further, the investor may be exposed to the credit risk of the person (typically the counterparty to the transaction) to whom the collateral is provided in the event that the collateral is not returned and the investor may be an unsecured creditor with respect to any claim in the event of the insolvency of the person to whom the collateral has been provided.

In certain circumstances (for example, in the case of exchange traded derivatives), the investor’s collateral may be passed on to third parties, including clearing houses and clearing brokers. In such circumstances, the investor may be exposed to the risk that the third party fails to return the collateral, for example in the event of that third party’s insolvency.

The arrangements under which collateral is provided and held may be governed by the laws of jurisdictions other than the jurisdiction in which the investor is located and/or with which the investor is familiar.

A detailed analysis and explanation of the consequences of providing collateral (including the concept of fungibility) is beyond the scope of this document and involves complex legal concepts and analysis. Before entering into transactions that require (or may require) the provision of collateral, investors should ensure that they understand the arrangements applicable to the collateral, the circumstances in which they may be required to provide additional collateral, and the legal and practical consequences of such arrangements. Where necessary, investors should obtain their own independent advice.

(17) Clearing House Risk

On many exchanges, the performance of a transaction may be “guaranteed” by the exchange or a clearing house. However, in most circumstances, an end investor is unlikely to obtain the direct benefit of the guarantee and the investor may not be protected in the event that a broker or other intermediary involved in the execution or settlement and clearing of the transaction fails to perform its obligations. Investors are also exposed, although typically indirectly, to the credit or default risk of the exchange or clearing house, as well as any broker or other intermediary involved. In the event of the default of any of these persons, the investor’s transactions may be terminated unilaterally and the investor may lose part or all of the amount invested.

Any such action will be binding on you.
- 4.4 We may refuse to enter into, execute, transmit, deal in or otherwise arrange any Transaction or perform any obligation pursuant to these Terms, including (but not limited to) where such action or performance (i) would cause us to breach any prohibition or restriction imposed or specified by an Applicable Regulator; (ii) would be prohibited, or made impracticable to effect on reasonably commercial terms, by any suspension or removal from trading of a financial instrument imposed by an Applicable Regulator pursuant to Applicable Regulations; or (iii) where we have agreed with you or any other person that we are not obliged to, or shall not, make public or otherwise report a Transaction, but we are nonetheless required by Applicable Regulations to report, publish or arrange the publication of such Transaction (pursuant to a market transparency requirement or otherwise), however, notwithstanding such agreement, we may publish or arrange the publication of such Transaction and may delegate such reporting or publication to another person.

5. Services

- 5.1 Pursuant to these Terms, we may contemplate or execute Transactions in Securities and Derivatives Business with you and provide you with certain ancillary services in relation to Transactions in Securities and Derivatives Business, including dealing and brokerage services and introducing and arranging ("Services"). Our Services may be provided in relation to Securities traded on Exchanges, including in Europe, the United States of America and Japan/other Asian Exchanges.
- 5.2 We set out in Schedule 1 to these Terms a non-exhaustive list of the descriptions of the risks involved in Transactions in certain types of Securities and Derivatives. By entering into these Terms you acknowledge and confirm you have read, understand and accept the risk statements contained in Schedule 1 to these Terms.
- 5.3 We may, at our absolute discretion and at any time, determine that we either will or will not offer the Services (or any part of them).
- 5.4 We will not provide any investment advice or otherwise act on your behalf in deciding to effect Transactions nor do we recommend whether or not a particular Transaction is suitable for you. We will not make any investment or other decisions on your behalf. You have sole responsibility for making any investment decisions. We will not give you investment, legal or tax advice in relation to any Transactions or Services.
- 5.5 Notwithstanding Clause 5.4, we may, from time to time and at our own discretion, provide you with information about Securities and Derivatives. However, we are not obliged to provide you with continuous information nor advice in relation to any Securities or Derivatives purchased (or proposed to be purchased) by you pursuant to these Terms or otherwise and we give no representation, warranty or guarantee as to the accuracy or completeness of such information.

6. Appropriateness

- 6.1 In respect of the Services, we may require you to provide information in relation to your knowledge and experience in the investment field relevant to the specific type of product or service (and updates to such information as necessary) relating to you, your agents, employees, underlying principals or others and you agree to provide such information as we may require.
- 6.2 If you have been categorised as a "professional client" or an "eligible counterparty", we assume, as we are entitled to do, that you have the necessary experience and knowledge in order to understand the risks involved in Transactions in respect of the Services for the purposes of assessing whether a Transaction is appropriate for you (where we have an obligation to make such an assessment).

- 6.3 Where you request at your own initiative the provision of Services in relation to the execution or reception and transmission of your orders in respect of Non-Complex Financial Instruments, then, unless otherwise agreed, we are not required to assess the appropriateness of such Transaction or Service for you and you therefore will not have the benefit of certain FCA conduct of business regulations relating to the assessment of appropriateness.

7. Use of Brokers, Introductory, Arranging and Order Routing Services

- 7.1 To effect Transactions in Securities, we may instruct a broker. A broker instructed by us may be an Affiliate of ours. Unless agreed in writing to the contrary, we will remain your counterparty to Transactions, acting as principal.
- 7.2 Where agreed in writing, separately from the Terms, we may act solely in the role of an introducer and introduce you to a broker dealing in the relevant Securities for the purposes of marketing and/or effecting any transactions in Securities (an "Introduced Broker"). In such circumstances, the Introduced Broker will be acting as principal as your contractual counterparty to the transactions. For the avoidance of doubt, we will not be your contractual counterparty in respect of any transactions entered into by you when carried out by an Introduced Broker and in relation to any such transactions you will be the client of that Introduced Broker.
- 7.3 Where you deal with or through a Routing Broker or Introduced Broker, the terms of such broker and, where relevant, its execution policy, will apply to the execution of the order.
- 7.4 We may provide an order routing service in Securities. Orders will be routed to a Routing Broker. You are responsible for the proper entry and transmission of the data relating to an order.
- 7.5 We reserve the right to refuse to route an order at any time and shall be under no obligation to divulge the reason.
- 7.6 You understand that when you are responsible for placing, amending and cancelling orders, their placing, amendment and cancellation shall be governed by Applicable Regulations. Accordingly, amendment and/or cancellation of orders is not guaranteed.
- 7.7 You must ensure that all orders and Transactions made pursuant to this Clause 7 comply with Applicable Regulations.
- 7.8 All Transactions between you and an Introduced Broker, or a Routing Broker in respect of which we provide order routing services, shall be subject to the terms of business (if any) and any other agreement or arrangement between the relevant broker and you ("Introduced/ Routing Broker Terms"). You may be required to enter into written Introduced/ Routing Broker Terms as a pre-condition to us introducing/routing your orders to such a broker.
- 7.9 As between us and you, if there is inconsistency between these Terms and Introduced/ Routing Broker Terms, these Terms will prevail.
- 7.10 We make no representation or warranty as to the services provided by, or creditworthiness of, Routing Brokers or Introduced Brokers. Where a broker, Introduced Broker or a Routing Broker is an overseas broker, Introduced Broker or Routing Broker then the services of that overseas broker, Introduced Broker or Routing Broker may not be regulated by the FCA.
- 7.11 You agree that:
- (a) the acceptance or rejection of orders routed by us is at the discretion of the broker, Routing Broker or Introduced Broker (as applicable), and we have no responsibility therefore; and
 - (b) we shall not be liable for breach by a broker, Routing Broker or an Introduced Broker of such broker's terms.

8. Third Party Services

- 8.1 We may provide Services with or through our Affiliates or Third Party Providers. You authorise us to use the services of Third Party Providers in our provision of the Services without your further consent and on such terms as we may determine and without a diminution of our rights.
- 8.2 Third Party Providers may include Infrastructures. Infrastructures have certain rules and regulations with which we must comply. You must read such rules and regulations and represent and warrant to us that you shall comply with such rules and regulations (to the extent applicable) and any other terms and conditions that Third Party Providers require with respect to your use of Third Party Services.

9. Order Execution

- 9.1 By entering into these Terms, you expressly consent to our execution policy, a summary of which has been provided to you separately. We will execute your orders in accordance with that policy.
- 9.2 In the context of Derivatives Business, we will be entering into Derivatives with you which are customised, bilateral agreements negotiated directly with you. As such, there is only one Execution Venue with which we will execute orders with you directly on a private basis in most circumstances (being us, or an Affiliate of ours, acting as your counterparty in a principal capacity), although, if required in accordance with EMIR, these orders will be cleared through a central counterparty. If you decide to proceed with any Derivatives Business quote we may give you, and to the extent best execution applies pursuant to the rules of the FCA, we will assume that we have provided the best possible result.
- 9.3 Please be aware that where we act in response to a request for a quote, we will meet our obligations to take all sufficient steps to obtain the best possible result for our clients by executing the order immediately after the quote is provided if the client accepts the order immediately, or if the quote is not accepted immediately, as soon as is reasonably practicable after the quote is accepted by the client, provided that, taking into account the changing market conditions and the time elapsed between the offer and acceptance of the quote, the quote is not manifestly out of date.
- 9.4 Unless otherwise agreed between the parties in writing, you expressly consent to our executing your orders outside of a regulated market, a multilateral trading facility or an organised trading facility (as such terms are defined in UK MiFIR).
- 9.5 You expressly instruct us not to make public any limit order relating to a transaction in Securities which is not immediately executed under prevailing market conditions.
- 9.6 We may, in certain circumstances, aggregate your order with our own orders and with orders of other clients. In some cases aggregation may result in you obtaining a less favourable price than would otherwise have been the case.

10. Basis of Dealing

- 10.1 Except where otherwise required by Applicable Regulations or notified to you, we deal as principal and not as agent on your behalf.
- 10.2 If Applicable Regulations require us to act as your agent on an Exchange or other Infrastructure you undertake to sign and deliver any required additional customer documentation.

11. Direct Electronic Access

- 11.1 Should we, or our Affiliates, provide you with direct electronic access, in relation to Securities trading, to a trading venue (i) without routing orders through our, or our Affiliates', internal electronic trading system, or (ii) through the use of a nominated technical system or technical connection between us, your rights and obligations arising from such provision will be set out in a separate, binding, written agreement.

12. Instructions

- 12.1 Unless otherwise notified by us, you may transmit your Instructions to us by telephone and facsimile, in writing, or electronically, including by email or electronic message protocol or system via electronic links and Instructions shall be transmitted to us at your risk. Instructions shall not take effect unless actually received by us and, in the case of any Instructions transmitted to any system, formally acknowledged by us. We shall not be required to confirm any such Instruction prior to execution or otherwise, and you agree to indemnify us and hold us harmless if you suffer any loss in reliance thereon.
- 12.2 We are not obliged to accept or execute any Instruction nor need we give any reasons for declining to do so.
- 12.3 We shall be entitled to rely on and treat as binding any Instructions which we believe to be from you or a person authorised to act on your behalf, and which we have accepted in good faith. Without prejudice to the above, you acknowledge that we may rely conclusively on, and you shall be bound by, any Instructions or other communications which purport to originate from you without any duty to make any investigation or enquiry as to the validity of such reliance.
- 12.4 If any instruction is ambiguous or conflicts (in part or whole) with another Instruction, you agree that we are entitled to act in good faith on what we reasonably understand to be the Instruction and any action we take or omit to take as a result will be binding on you.

13. Unsettled Positions

- 13.1 Except as otherwise stated, we will have no responsibility for taking or failing to take action in respect of any rights you may have under any Unsettled Position unless we receive timely Instructions from you.

- 13.2 Where any action is taken by us or a third party pursuant to any Applicable Regulations which affects any of your Unsettled Positions generally or corresponding Exchange Transactions to which we are a party, we will make such allocation amongst the affected customer Unsettled Positions as we think fit, to which allocation you shall be bound. We shall use commercially reasonable efforts promptly to notify you of such event, but will not be liable for any loss incurred by you as a result of such action or any failure to notify.

14. Payment and Delivery

- 14.1 By entering into a Transaction in Securities you become unconditionally obliged, in respect of each Unsettled Position resulting from such Transaction, to pay or deliver such amount of cash or Securities to us or at our direction as we are required to pay or deliver to (or at the direction of) the Clearing Member or the Infrastructure within such time as we may specify and undertake that you will effect such payment or delivery in sufficient time to enable us to meet our obligations to the Clearing Member or the Infrastructure on time.

- 14.2 You will not be entitled to receive delivery of Securities or payment of cash from us, nor to any right of ownership or other proprietary interest in or in relation to such Securities or cash, in settlement of a Transaction unless and until you have complied with Clause 14.1 and we have received unconditional and final delivery of such Securities (including, where relevant, payment or delivery of any cash amounts or other assets that the Infrastructure or Clearing Member is permitted to make in accordance with Applicable Regulations in lieu of, or in substitution for, its obligation to deliver Securities) or payment of cash from the Infrastructure or Clearing Member.

- 14.3 If you fail to pay any sum when due in respect of a Transaction, interest will be payable on the unpaid sum until payment is received. Interest will be calculated at one per cent. above the Bank of England's base rate. Such interest will be payable on demand and may be deducted by us from any amount due to you from us or our Affiliates.

15. Position Limits

- 15.1 We will have the right, whenever we in our absolute discretion deem such action necessary or desirable for the purposes of complying with Applicable Regulations, to limit or require the reduction of the size and number of Unsettled Positions (net or gross) which may at any time be outstanding, or to Close Out any one or more Unsettled Positions in order to reduce the Unsettled Positions carried with us.

- 15.2 The FCA or other national competent authorities will impose position limits in respect of certain commodity derivatives, and position management controls may be imposed by an Exchange. In order to ensure that such position limits and position management controls are complied with, we may require you to limit, terminate or reduce the positions which you may have with us at any time and we may in our sole and absolute discretion Close Out any one or more Transactions.

16. Pre Hedging

- 16.1 We may undertake pre-hedging activity in respect of Transactions conducted by us as principal with you by executing principal transactions in the market before and/or after executing your Transaction.

- 16.2 When you indicate your interest in a Transaction or seek a request for quote in a Transaction, we may use that information to engage in pre-hedging activity, which may include entering into transactions prior to executing your Transaction or request with a view to facilitating your Transaction or request. Any transactions entered into by us with a view to facilitating your Transaction will be entered into by us as principal, not as an agent for you.

- 16.3 Any pre-hedging or hedging transactions entered into by us may be commensurate with the size and nature of your order, could be at different prices from the price at which we execute your Transaction, may affect the market price of or liquidity of the product(s) you are buying and/or selling and may result in profit, or loss, to us.

- 16.4 When engaging in pre-hedging activity, we have in place procedures to ensure that your Transaction is executed in an orderly fashion and in a manner unlikely to disadvantage you or create undue market impact although there is no guarantee that these activities will result in the desired outcome.

- 16.5 Any pre-hedging will be in accordance with our internal guidelines and policies and the principles established by regulators and will take into consideration prevailing market conditions and the size and nature of your anticipated Transaction.

17. ICMA Rules and Recommendations

- 17.1 All Transactions in "international securities" as that term is defined in the rules and recommendations of the International Capital Market Association ("ICMA"), and unless agreed otherwise at the time of trade in non-US debt or convertible instruments, shall be subject to ICMA rules and recommendations.

18. Short-selling

18.1 You are required to advise us if any sale order given to us is a short sale and we shall have the right to refuse to accept any short sale order.

19. Late settlement and Settlement Fails

19.1 Without prejudice to any other remedy we may have under these Terms or Applicable Regulations, if at any time you fail to deliver Securities in compliance with any obligation which you may have under these Terms, you authorise (but without requiring) us:

- (a) to borrow or to buy (for your account) such Securities necessary to make delivery thereof and to deliver the same; and
- (b) to purchase or otherwise acquire (for your account) Securities equivalent to any Securities borrowed by us pursuant to our powers under sub-Clause (a) above and to use such Securities to perform our obligations to the lender of such Securities to deliver Securities equivalent to the borrowed Securities.

19.2 In connection with the requirements of the CSDR, we may be charged cash penalties (“Cash Penalties”) or receive payments of cash penalties (“Penalty Credits”) in connection with our provision of investment services to you which relate to a transaction executed by you that fails to settle (“Settlement Fails”). Unless otherwise agreed with you, we may, at our discretion, charge you an amount up to any Cash Penalties we incur for Settlement Fails or make a payment to you in connection with a Penalty Credit, in each case, that may arise in connection with transactions executed by you.

20. No holding of Client Money or Client Assets

20.1 Transactions will be settled on a delivery versus payment basis. Consequently, we will not hold Client Money or “client assets”, as such terms are defined in the FCA rules, on your behalf in connection with Transactions carried out under these Terms including the requirement to segregate funds from our own funds and funds of other clients.

20.2 If, notwithstanding Clause 20.1, we hold any cash on your behalf at any time, we will do so as banker and not as trustee under the FCA rules on Client Money. If we fail (i.e. we are subject to the appointment of a liquidator, receiver, administrator, special administrator or trustee in bankruptcy, or any equivalent procedure in any relevant jurisdiction), the FCA’s rules on the distribution and transfer of Client Money will not apply to such cash so you will not be entitled to share in any distribution under the FCA’s rules on the distribution and transfer of Client Money.

21. Communications and Notices

21.1 Any notice or other communication in connection with these Terms shall be in writing and sent by electronic mail to the email address most recently given. A notice or other communication shall take effect from the time it is received. Notwithstanding the foregoing, you consent to us communicating with you via notices posted to our website. We will communicate with you, and you will communicate with us, in English.

21.2 The parties agree that electronic transmission of information cannot be guaranteed to be secure or error free and could be intercepted, corrupted, lost, destroyed, arrive late or incomplete or otherwise be adversely affected or unsafe to use and they will both use commercially reasonable procedures to check for the then most commonly known viruses before sending electronically. The parties recognise that such procedures cannot be a guarantee that transmissions will be virus free and they shall each be responsible for protecting their own interests in relation to electronic communications and for ensuring that an electronic communication is not misaddressed.

22. Reporting Trading Information

22.1 We will not make any trade or transaction reports for you in respect of Transactions, unless otherwise agreed with you in writing, or unless such obligation to report falls upon us whilst acting as a Systematic Internaliser.

22.2 We may be required to report details in respect of Transactions to a relevant regulatory authority pursuant to Applicable Regulations (including under Article 26 UK MiFIR) or to a trade repository or otherwise in accordance with Applicable Regulations (“Transaction Reporting Requirements”).

22.3 We may from time to time require you to provide all information (and updates to such information as necessary) relating to you and your agents, employees, underlying principals or others as we may reasonably require in order to comply with any market transparency requirements and Transaction Reporting Requirements as we may reasonably believe may arise in respect of your Transactions. You agree to deliver to us such information and represent to us that such information as you deliver is, at the time of delivery, true, accurate and complete in every material respect and you acknowledge and agree that we may rely on the information without investigation, unless and until you inform us otherwise. You undertake to provide us, on reasonable notice, with any material changes or updates to this information.

- 22.4 We may refuse to enter into, execute, transmit, deal in or otherwise arrange any Transaction where you have not provided such information (and waived or procured the waiver of any confidentiality or data protection/privacy obligations in respect of such information) as we may reasonably require: (a) in order for us to comply with any Transaction Reporting Requirements or market transparency requirements in respect of a Transaction; or (b) where our non-receipt of such information (including, without limitation, an applicable legal identifier code) would mean that we are prohibited by Applicable Regulations to enter into, execute, transmit, deal or otherwise arrange (as the case may be) such Transaction.
- 22.5 The parties shall, before concluding a Transaction outside the rules of an Exchange (whether acting as, or on behalf of, the buyer or seller thereof), confirm to each other whether each is a Systematic Internaliser in respect of the relevant Transaction.
- 22.6 Where you transmit an order relating to a Transaction to us, we shall be under no obligation (unless expressly agreed otherwise) to report the Transaction resulting from the order concerned or transmit the order details to another investment firm in accordance with Article 4 of UK MiFID2 RTS 22.
- 22.7 Unless otherwise agreed, we will provide you with trading confirmations promptly following the execution of an order with essential information concerning the execution of the order in accordance with the FCA rules on reporting information to clients. We will supply to you, on request, information about the status of your order.

23. Your Representations, Warranties and Undertakings

- 23.1 You represent, warrant and undertake to us, as of the date of these Terms, the date of any Instruction and the date of each Transaction that:
- (a) you have all necessary authority, powers, capacity, consents, licences, approvals and authorisations, and have taken all necessary action to enable you lawfully to enter into and perform your obligations under these Terms and each Transaction;
 - (b) these Terms, each Transaction and the obligations created under them are binding upon you and enforceable against you in accordance with their terms and do not and will not violate the terms of any Applicable Regulations, charge or agreement by which you are bound;
 - (c) at the time of transfer by you of any Securities, you will have full and unqualified right to make such transfer and upon such transfer the transferee will receive all right, title and interest in and to those Securities free from any charge, lien, pledge, encumbrance or other adverse interest;
 - (d) all information which you have provided, and will provide, to us is true, complete, accurate and not misleading, and you will promptly provide us with any further information properly required from time to time by any competent authority, Infrastructure, Third Party Provider or us, as applicable;
 - (e) any person (including any third party) appointed by you to give and/or receive notices, Instructions and/or other communications on your behalf under these Terms has all the requisite power, authority and regulatory or governmental consents to give and receive such notices, Instructions and/or other communications;
 - (f) you are familiar with any relevant Infrastructure rules and you will not take any action or make any omission that will cause any person to be in breach of or in default under any relevant Infrastructure rules;
 - (g) to the extent that you are not acting as principal but as agent for a Principal:
 - (i) you are expressly authorised by the Principal to instruct us in respect of the Securities, the Services and any Transaction; and
 - (ii) the Principal can make the representations and warranties set out in sub-clauses (a) to (e) and (h) to (j) inclusive as if it were the party to these Terms and shall not cause you to be in breach of these Terms or cause you or us to be in breach of any Applicable Regulations;
 - (h) you are subject to, and are fully in compliance with, the UK Bribery Act 2010 (as amended from time to time) or are subject to, and are fully in compliance with, all applicable laws, statutes and regulations relating to anti-bribery and anti-corruption in your jurisdiction;
 - (i) you have not relied, are not relying and will not rely on any communication or information (written or oral) from us as investment advice or as an assurance as to the expected performance of any Transaction, and you have taken or will have taken such review and/or advice as you consider necessary to ensure that any Transaction meets your needs prior to entering into any Transaction;

- (j) in using the Services, you will comply at all times with, and not in any way violate, these Terms and any Applicable Regulations;
- (k) no Event of Default has occurred and is continuing or will occur by your entering into, or performing your obligations under, these Terms; and
- (l) you represent and warrant that your use of the Electronic Services, as applicable, will be for the purposes of your business, trade or profession. The parties acknowledge and agree that the requirements of the EU's Electronic Commerce Directive (2000/31/EC), as implemented in the United Kingdom, are excluded to the fullest extent permissible by law.

23.2 You will notify us promptly if there is any material change in any such information provided, or if any of the above representations shall materially change or cease to be true and correct.

24. Liability

24.1 Our liability for any loss, liability, damage or expense arising out of or in connection with the Services, whether under any express or implied term of these Terms, shall be limited as described in Clauses 24.2 to 24.6 below, unless otherwise expressly provided in these Terms. References to negligence include negligence which causes death or personal injury.

24.2 We will not be liable for any loss, liability, damage or expense which may be sustained by you unless such loss arises solely and directly from negligence, wilful default, dishonesty or fraud by us or any of our officers, directors or employees.

24.3 We will have no liability for any partial or total non-performance of any Service if such partial or total non-performance results from any event or state of affairs beyond our reasonable control including, without limitation, any failure of communication or computer systems or equipment or suspension of trading by any Infrastructure, clearing bank or the Custodian or any other Third Party Provider.

24.4 We accept no liability for any loss, liability, damage or expense that arises out of a failure by you to provide information reasonably requested by us (or our Affiliates) or by reason of such information being incomplete or inaccurate.

24.5 We accept no liability for:

- (a) losses, whether direct or indirect, of profits, goodwill, revenue, anticipated savings or of data; or
- (b) any indirect, consequential or incidental losses, regardless of whether the possibility of such losses was disclosed to, known by, or could reasonably have been foreseen by us.

24.6 Nothing in these Terms shall exclude or limit any duty or liability which we may have which may not be excluded or restricted pursuant to Applicable Regulations.

24.7 References in this Clause 24 and Clause 26 to us include references to our Affiliates and any Third Party Providers, and their respective officers, directors, employees, agents and licensors.

25. Indemnity

You will indemnify, and keep indemnified, us and our Affiliates and respective personnel on demand against any and all acts, proceedings, claims, demands, obligations, charges, reasonable fees and expenses, taxes, payments, liabilities, losses, injuries, costs and damages whatsoever incurred or payable (including, without limitation, the reasonable costs of professional advisors, and all costs, charges, liabilities and expenses arising out of any claims, actions or proceedings brought against us by Third Party Providers) arising:

- (a) out of any breach by you of these Terms; and/or
- (b) pursuant to or in connection with these Terms (including in connection with any Transaction effected on your behalf, at your request or otherwise in order to comply with your Instructions) and the provision of the Services (including but not limited to any Third Party Services) unless due solely and directly to our wilful default, dishonesty or fraud.

26. Default

- 26.1 You must notify us immediately upon becoming aware that an Event of Default has occurred.
- 26.2 Following the occurrence of an Event of Default we may, without prior notice to you, take any and all actions that we reasonably consider to be necessary or desirable in the circumstances, including (without limitation):
- (a) to declare any or all amounts owing by you (or, where you are acting as agent, your Principal) to us to be immediately due and payable (to the extent that this is not already the case at the relevant time);
 - (b) to withhold delivery of Securities or payment of cash to you that we would otherwise be required to make in connection with any Transactions;
 - (c) to buy-in or sell-out Securities for your account and at your risk in settlement of an Unsettled Position;
 - (d) to charge you interest on any payment which is overdue from you at such rate and on such basis as we customarily charge for unauthorised overdrafts accruing from the date such payment is due; and
 - (e) we reserve the right to Close Out any Transaction if we determine in our reasonable discretion that such action is required by Applicable Regulations or is otherwise necessary or reasonable for the purposes of limiting risk. If we Close Out any Transaction, you hereby agree to indemnify us for any loss we suffer as a result of taking such action. In each case, we shall use commercially reasonable efforts promptly to notify you of such event, but will not be liable for any loss incurred by you as a result of such action or any failure to notify.

In each case, we may carry out any such action in such manner and on such terms as we in our absolute discretion think fit and we shall not be responsible for any losses occasioned by such action.

- 26.3 Following the occurrence of an Event of Default, we may by notice to you:
- (a) terminate or suspend these Terms in whole or with respect to one or more Exchanges with immediate effect;
 - (b) demand performance by you of your obligations to us in such manner as is determined by us; or
 - (c) seek repayment of any losses suffered by us in consequence of the Event of Default.
- 26.4 Upon the occurrence of an Event of Default, we shall have the right without prior notice to you, and without any obligation to exercise instead a power of sale under these Terms, to set-off or apply any obligation of yours owed to us or any of our Affiliates (whether or not arising under these Terms, matured or contingent and irrespective of currency, place of payment or booking office of the obligation) against any obligation owed to you by us or any of our Affiliates (whether or not arising under these Terms, matured or contingent and irrespective of currency, place of payment or booking office of the obligation). For the purpose of cross-currency set-off, we may convert either obligation at the applicable market exchange rate selected by us on the relevant date. If an obligation is unascertained, we may estimate that amount and set-off in respect of that estimate, subject to the relevant party accounting to the other when the amount of the obligation is ascertained. Nothing in this Clause will be effective to create a charge or other security interest.

27. Conflicts Policy

- 27.1 We have policies and procedures to identify, consider and manage potential conflicts of interest and protect the integrity of our relationships with our clients. Our personnel are required to comply with such policies and procedures and may not do anything directly or indirectly that is prohibited thereunder. A summary of our conflicts policy is included herein.

28. Client Reports

- 28.1 We shall provide reports to you in relation to the execution of Transactions as may be required in accordance with Applicable Regulations.

29. Fees, Charges and Payments

- 29.1 We will notify our charges to you separately from time to time.
- 29.2 You agree that, notwithstanding our requirement to provide you with information on costs and associated charges under the rules of the FCA Handbook, and excluding any costs and charges in connection with any Transactions that embed a derivative, we may provide you with only certain details in respect of such costs and charges where agreed with you.

- 29.3 Where permitted by Applicable Regulations, we may share charges with, or receive remuneration from, third parties (including Affiliates) in respect of Transactions we carry out with or for you, or we may be acting on both sides of the Transaction. We will provide you with further details in respect of any such charges.
- 29.4 Without prejudice to Clauses 9 or 10, we may, in certain circumstances, apply a mark-up or mark-down in the price of a Transaction in Securities and Derivatives, which is likely to vary on a transaction-by-transaction basis. Any mark-up or mark-down applied to client Transactions by us will be fair and reasonable, and shall be included in the final price of a Transaction in order to compensate us (as the market participant) for a number of considerations, which might include risks taken, costs incurred, and services rendered.
- 29.5 Unless we agree otherwise, all money payable by you or your Principals will be paid using immediately available, freely convertible funds in the relevant currency on the due date regardless of any right of equity, set-off or counterclaim that you may allege against us.
- 30. Taxes
- 30.1 All sums payable by you or your Principal will be paid free and clear of any taxes, unless you or your Principal are required by law to withhold or deduct tax. In this case, unless we agree otherwise, you or your Principal will pay an additional amount so that we receive an amount after withholding or deduction of tax that equals the amount that we would have received without such withholding or deduction.
- 30.2 You are responsible for paying any taxes due and making claims relating to taxes (such as for exemption from withholding tax), for filing any tax returns and for providing information to the tax authorities in relation to any business we carry on with or for you. You agree to reimburse us for any fees we incur on your behalf or otherwise in connection with the provision of the Services to you in accordance with these Terms.
- 31. Confidentiality and Privacy
- 31.1 We are not obliged to disclose to you, or to take into consideration in providing the Services, information where the disclosure of it to you would be a breach of duty or confidence to any other person.
- 31.2 Neither party ("Receiving Party") will disclose any information (irrespective of whether it is marked "confidential" or not) relating to the other party ("Disclosing Party") obtained in connection with these Terms, including information relating to these Terms, the Services or any Transaction ("Confidential Information"), to any third party except (i) with the consent of the Disclosing Party, (ii) as is reasonably necessary to implement or perform these Terms, including (without limitation) disclosure to Infrastructures, brokers and other intermediaries and counterparties, (iii) as is required by court order or otherwise by Applicable Regulations, (iv) to Applicable Regulators, on their request, (v) to the Receiving Party's personnel, professional advisers, other service providers and insurers (each of whom shall be subject to confidentiality obligations where they are not an officer, employee or director of the Receiving Party, or are not under a professional duty to protect confidentiality), or (vi) to the Receiving Party's Affiliates which are subject to confidentiality obligations.
- 31.3 Clause 31.2 shall not apply to any information which:
- (a) is in or subsequently enters the public domain other than as a result of a breach of Clause 31.2;
 - (b) has been or is subsequently received by the Receiving Party from a third party which is under no confidentiality obligation in respect of that information;
 - (c) has been or is subsequently independently developed by the Receiving Party without use of the Disclosing Party's Confidential Information; or
 - (d) was previously known to the Receiving Party free of any obligation to keep it confidential.
- 31.4 Clauses 31.1 to 31.3 shall remain in full force and effect notwithstanding any termination of these Terms.
- 31.5 Where you are a legal entity or are acting on behalf of other individuals, in respect of the processing of any personal data pursuant to these Terms:

 - (i) promptly and without undue delay, and in any event within three days from the date on which it received the request, forward the request to other party; and
 - (ii) cooperate and provide reasonable assistance in relation to that request to enable the other party to respond in accordance with Data Protection Laws (including in compliance with applicable deadlines and information requirements).
 - (e) Each party shall, taking into account the state of the art, the costs of implementation and the nature, scope, context and purpose of processing, as well as the risk of varying likelihood and severity for the rights and freedoms of natural persons, implement and maintain appropriate technical and organisational measures to ensure a level of security appropriate to the risk, including the risk of unauthorised or unlawful processing of personal data, and of accidental or unlawful loss, alteration, unauthorised disclosure or destruction of, or damage to, personal data.
 - (f) Each party (“Notifying Party”) shall promptly notify the other party (“Notified Party”) after becoming aware of a personal data breach affecting personal data, and the Notifying Party shall:

 - (ii) upon the Notified Party’s written request, provided the Notified Party with reasonable cooperation and assistance in respect of the personal data breach.
 - (g) Each party shall only process or transfer personal data in or, in the case of transfer, to, any country or territory outside the United Kingdom and EEA (as applicable) if and for so long as:
 - (i) an Adequacy Decision is in place;
 - (ii) the transfer is subject to a derogation in accordance with Article 49 EU GDPR or Article 49 UK GDPR (as applicable);
 - (iii) it is made in accordance with Article 46 EU GDPR or Article 46 UK GDPR (as applicable), including where standard contractual clauses approved by the UK Information Commissioner’s Office or European Commission (as applicable) are in place between the exporting party and the data recipient.
- 31.6 Each party consents to the monitoring and recording of all communications, including telephone conversations, with the other party with or without the use of a warning tone or other notification. Absent contrary evidence, our records of such communications shall be our sole property and accepted by you as conclusive evidence of their content. A copy of such recordings and communications will be available on request for a period of five years and, where requested by the FCA, for a period of up to seven years.

32. Termination

- 32.1 These Terms shall continue in full force and effect until terminated by us or you by written notice from one party to the other. Such notice may be given no less than thirty (30) days prior to the date of termination, provided that such notice may be immediately effective following your Event of Default.
- 32.2 Termination shall be without prejudice to the completion of Transactions already initiated and will not affect outstanding rights or liabilities.

33. General

- 33.1 Notwithstanding any other provision of these Terms, we may delegate the performance of all or part of our duties and obligations to an Affiliate. Our liability under these Terms shall not be affected by any such delegation.
- 33.2 Neither the relationship between us and you, nor the Services to be provided by us nor any information provided to you, nor any other matter, shall give rise to any fiduciary or equitable duties on our part which would oblige us (or any of our Affiliates or agents) to accept responsibilities more extensive than those set out in these Terms.
- 33.3 These Terms may be amended or supplemented by us by delivery to you of the amendments or revised Terms. An amendment or supplement which is made to reflect a change of Applicable Regulations may take effect immediately or otherwise as we may specify. Any other amendment or supplement will take effect no earlier than 10 days after we deliver the notice. No other amendment to these Terms shall be effective unless in writing and signed by a duly authorised representative of us.
- 33.4 Neither these Terms nor any rights, powers, liabilities or obligations under or pursuant to these Terms may be transferred or assigned by you or by us without the prior consent of the other party (such consent not to be unreasonably withheld or delayed), save that we may, upon dispatch of written notice to you, transfer to an Affiliate any or all of our rights, powers, liabilities and obligations under or pursuant to these Terms. The parties agree that these Terms shall extend to and be binding upon their respective successors and assigns.
- 33.5 Our rights and remedies under these Terms are cumulative and are not exclusive of any rights or remedies provided by law or by any other agreement. No waiver by us of any Event of Default or breach of any obligation arising under these Terms shall constitute a waiver of any other such event or breach and no exercise or partial exercise by us of any remedy shall constitute a waiver of the right subsequently to exercise that or any other remedy.
- 33.6 Each provision of these terms is severable and if any provision (or any part of any provision) of these Terms is or becomes invalid under, or contravenes, any Applicable Regulations, the remaining provisions (and, where applicable, the remainder of the provision in question) shall not be affected and shall remain in full force.
- 33.7 So far as is permitted by Applicable Regulations and except in the case of fraud, you agree and acknowledge that your only rights and remedies in relation to any representation, warranty or undertaking made or given in connection with these Terms shall be for breach of the terms of these Terms, to the exclusion of all other rights and remedies (including those in tort or arising under statute).
- 33.8 Subject to Clauses 24 and 25 above (which shall confer rights upon third parties as contemplated therein), nothing in these Terms is intended to confer any rights on any person not a party under the Contracts (Rights of Third Parties) Act 1999. No consent of any third party shall be needed for the termination or amendment of any terms of these Terms.
- 33.9 These Terms and any non-contractual matters in connection with them will be governed by and construed in accordance with English law. The parties agree that the courts of England have exclusive jurisdiction to settle any dispute arising out of or in connection with these Terms (including a dispute regarding the existence, validity or termination of these Terms) or the consequences of their nullity (a "Dispute"). The parties agree that the courts of England are the most appropriate and convenient courts to settle Disputes and, accordingly, that they will not argue to the contrary.
- 33.10 If you do not have your registered office or principal place of business in the United Kingdom, you must immediately appoint a party as an agent for service in the United Kingdom and notify us of such appointment as soon as is practically possible.

Schedule 1

Risk Factors and Warnings

This notice is provided to you in compliance with the rules of the Financial Conduct Authority (FCA). This notice (which should be read in conjunction with “General Description of the Nature and Risks of Financial Instruments” (Appendix 1.3)) cannot disclose all the risks and other significant aspects of trading under these Terms. You should not deal in these products unless you understand their nature and the extent of your exposure to risk. You should also be satisfied that the product is suitable for you in the light of your circumstances and financial position.

1 Shares

A share is an instrument representing a shareholder’s rights in a company. Shares may be issued in bearer or registered form and may be certificated or non-certificated. One share represents a fraction of a corporation’s share capital. Dividend payments and an increase in the value of the security are both possible, although not guaranteed. The shareholder has financial and ownership rights which are determined by law and the issuing company’s articles of association. Unless otherwise provided, transfers of bearer shares do not entail any formalities. However, transfers of registered shares are often subject to limitations.

Dealing in shares may involve risks including but not limited to the following:

- (a) Company risk: a share purchaser does not lend funds to the company, but becomes a co-owner of the company. He or she thus participates in its development as well as in chances for profits and losses, which makes it difficult to forecast the precise yield on such an investment. An extreme case would be if the company went bankrupt, thereby wiping out the total sums invested.
- (b) Price risk: share prices may undergo unforeseeable price fluctuations causing risks of loss. Price increases and decreases in the short, medium and long-term alternate without it being possible to determine the duration of those cycles. General market risk must be distinguished from the specific risk attached to the company itself. Both risks, jointly or in aggregate, influence share prices.
- (c) Dividend risk: the dividend per share mainly depends on the issuing company’s earnings and on its dividend policy. In case of low profits or losses, dividend payments may be reduced or not made at all.

2 Bonds

A bond is a negotiable debt instrument issued in bearer or registered form by a company or a government body to creditors and whose par value at issuance represents a fraction of the total amount of the debt. The duration of the debt as well as the terms and conditions of repayment are determined in advance. Unless stipulated otherwise, a bond is repaid either at the maturity date, or by means of annual payments, or at different rates determined by drawing lots. The interest payments on bonds may be either: (i) fixed for the entire duration or (ii) variable and often linked to reference rates, e.g. Euro Interbank Offered Rate (EURIBOR) or Sterling Overnight Interbank Average Rate (SONIA), amongst others. The purchaser of a bond (the creditor) has a claim against the issuer (the debtor).

Dealing in bonds may involve risks including but not limited to the following:

- (a) Insolvency risk: the issuer may become temporarily or permanently insolvent, resulting in its incapacity to repay the interest or redeem the bond. The solvency of an issuer may change due to one or more of a range of factors depending on the issuing company, the issuer’s economic sector and/or the political and economic status of the countries concerned. The deterioration of the issuer’s solvency will influence the price of the securities that it issues.
- (b) Interest rate risk: uncertainty concerning interest rate movements means that purchasers of fixed-rate securities carry the risk of a fall in the prices of the securities if interest rates rise. The longer the duration of the loan and the lower the interest rate, the higher a bond’s sensitivity to a rise in the market rates.
- (c) Credit risk: the value of a bond will fall in the event of a default or reduced credit rating of the issuer. Generally, the higher the relative rate of interest (that is, relative to the interest rate on a risk-free security of similar maturity and interest rate structure), the higher the perceived credit risk of the issuer.
- (d) Early redemption risk: the issuer of a bond may include a provision allowing early redemption of the bond if market interest rates fall. Such early redemption may result in a change to the expected yield.

- (e) Risks specific to bonds redeemable by drawing: bonds redeemable by drawing have a maturity that is difficult to determine, so unexpected changes in the yield on these bonds may occur.
- (f) Risks specific to certain types of bond: additional risks may be associated with certain types of bond, for example floating rate notes, reverse floating rate notes, zero coupon bonds, foreign currency bonds, convertible bonds, reverse convertible notes, indexed bonds and subordinated bonds. For such bonds, you are advised to make enquiries about the risks referred to in the issuance prospectus and not to purchase such securities before being certain that all risks are fully understood. In the case of subordinated bonds, you are advised to enquire about the ranking of the debenture compared with the issuer's other debentures. Indeed, if the issuer becomes bankrupt, those bonds will only be redeemed after repayment of all higher ranked creditors and as such there is a risk that you will not be reimbursed. In the case of reverse convertible notes, there is a risk that you will not be entirely reimbursed, but will receive only an amount equivalent to the underlying securities at maturity.

3 Derivatives

A derivative is a type of financial instrument whose value is based upon the value of an underlying asset, index, rate or reference point. Derivatives involve the transfer of risk from one party to another. They can be used to limit a party's exposure to a variable or allow a party to gain exposure to that variable.

- (a) Understanding the risk of derivative products: you should not deal in derivative products unless you understand the nature of the contract you are entering into and the extent of your exposure to risk. You should also be satisfied that the contract is suitable for you in light of your circumstances and financial position. Although derivatives can be utilised for the management of investment and liability risk, some of these products are unsuitable for many investors. Derivative products will not always act in the same way. Relationships with us may differ depending on the product and nature of the transaction, and clearing houses may not always owe you a direct commitment. Different products involve different levels of exposure to risk and in deciding whether to trade in such products you should be aware of the following points.
- (b) Off-exchange transactions: when trading financial derivative products with us, you will be entering into off exchange derivative transactions. All positions entered into with us must be executed with us and cannot be executed with any other entity. Transactions in off-exchange derivatives may involve greater risk than investing in on exchange derivatives because there is no exchange market on which to close an open position. It may be impossible to liquidate an existing position, to assess the value of the position arising from an off-exchange transaction or to assess the exposure to risk. Bid prices and offer prices need not be quoted by us, and, even where they are, we may find it difficult to establish a fair price, particularly when the relevant exchange or market for the underlying is closed or suspended.

4 Foreign markets

Foreign markets will involve different risks from the UK markets. In some cases the risks will be greater. The potential for profit or loss from transactions on foreign markets or in foreign denominated contracts will be affected by fluctuations in foreign exchange rates.

5 Collateral

The way in which collateral will be treated will vary according to the type of transaction and where such collateral is traded. There could be significant differences in the treatment of your collateral, depending on whether you are trading on a recognised or designated investment exchange, with the rules of that exchange (and the associated clearing house) applying, or trading off-exchange. We reserve the right to implement a higher margining requirement than the exchange. Deposited collateral may lose its identity as your property once dealings on your behalf are undertaken. Even if your dealings should ultimately prove profitable, you may not get back the same assets which you deposited, and may have to accept payment in cash.

If we hold any cash on your behalf at any time, we will do so as banker and not as trustee under the FCA rules on Client Money.

6 Commissions

Before you begin to trade, you should obtain details of all commissions and other charges for which you will be liable. If any charges are not expressed in money terms (but, for example, as a percentage of contract value), you should obtain a clear and written explanation, including appropriate examples, to establish what such charges are likely to mean in specific money terms.

7 Suspensions of trading

Under certain trading conditions it may be difficult or impossible to liquidate a position. This may occur, for example, at times of rapid price movement if the price rises or falls in one trading session to such an extent that under the rules of the relevant exchange trading is suspended or restricted. Placing a stop-loss order will not necessarily limit your losses to the intended amounts, because market conditions may make it impossible to execute such an order at the price stipulated.

8 Clearing house protections

On many exchanges, the performance of a transaction is 'guaranteed' by the exchange or clearing house. However, this guarantee is unlikely in most circumstances to cover you, the client, and may not protect you if we or another party defaults on its obligations to you. Additionally, in relation to Derivatives Business, Transactions are not executed on any exchange or through any clearing house; although if required in accordance with EMIR, Transactions will be cleared through a central counterparty.

9 Insolvency

Our insolvency or default, or that of any other brokers involved with your transaction, may lead to positions being liquidated or closed out without your consent. In certain circumstances, you may not get back the actual assets which you lodged as collateral and you may have to accept any available payments in cash.

Schedule 2

Agents

This Schedule 2 applies where you are an agent acting on behalf of an underlying principal.

Where you have disclosed to us that you act as agent on behalf of a Principal and have identified that person to us to our reasonable satisfaction, we may agree to treat the Principal as our client for the purposes of Applicable Regulations subject to the Principal entering into these Terms and any other agreements we may require. You hereby provide your agreement, in accordance with FCA rules, to us treating the Principal as our client in such cases.

You agree, warrant and represent as at the date of each Transaction which you enter into on behalf of the Principal that:

- 4 You undertake that you will procure that your Principal will not create or have outstanding any security interest whatsoever on or over any of the Securities.

- 6 All Securities delivered by you pursuant to a Transaction will be beneficially owned by your Principal free from all liens, charges and encumbrances other than those which may arise in our favour.
- 7 In relation to Securities, money or other property which belongs beneficially to your Principal, references in any documentation relating to a Transaction to you shall be construed as references to your Principal.
- 8 You will be, and you will procure that your Principal will be, jointly and severally liable, each as if a Principal, to us in respect of all obligations and liabilities to be performed by you pursuant to and in respect of any Transaction(s) entered into as part of the Services provided to you pursuant to these Terms.
- 9 You have, and you will procure that your Principal has, obtained all consents, licences and authorisations to enable you and your Principal to enter into, perform and comply with your and your Principal's obligations under any Transaction and you will, and will procure that your Principal will maintain in full force and effect all such consents, licences, and authorisations and you will or procure that your Principal will provide us with copies or other evidence of such consents or approvals as we may reasonably require.
- 10 You undertake, at our request, to supply us with such financial or other information about your Principal as we may reasonably require.
- 11 You will notify us promptly in writing if there is any material deterioration in the financial condition of your Principal or if you cease to act for any Principal.
- 12 You will notify us prior to or promptly after you provide us with an Instruction on behalf of any Principal that you are acting as agent for that the Principal and inform us of the identity, address and any other details which we may require to provide our services under these Terms to the Principal. Without limitation to the foregoing, where you have entered into a Transaction on behalf of a Principal, you will provide us with all the information required by us for the settlement of such Transaction no later than 24 hours prior to the due date for settlement of that Transaction.

- 13 Our liability shall also be limited in respect of your Principal as it is limited in respect of you pursuant to Clause 24.
- 14 You will be jointly and severally liable for the performance by the Principal of its obligations under a transaction.
- 15 You shall only submit an Instruction or enter into a Transaction contemplated or executed by or between us and you pursuant to these Terms on behalf of a Principal when you have, under your management, assets of such Principal which are sufficient, at the time such Transaction is entered into, to satisfy that Principal's obligations under the Transaction by the applicable settlement date of such Transaction and you have the full authority of that Principal to use such assets to meet such obligations.
- 16 Notwithstanding the foregoing, or any provision of these Terms to the contrary, you agree that, for settlement purposes only, we may settle directly with the Principal and will be entitled to take any action to effect such settlement.
- 17 Upon the occurrence of an Event of Default by any of your Principals, or the failure of any of your Principals to meet any of their material obligations hereunder, you will provide us with the full name, registered office (as well as, if the Principal's registered office address is not in the UK, the address of a process agent that the Principal has agreed to maintain for the duration of the receipt of services under this agreement) and contact details of the relevant Principal and take all other steps as we may reasonably (acting in good faith) require in order that we might take such steps as are necessary, including but not limited to instituting legal proceedings against your Principal, to minimise our exposure and/or redress any loss or damage we may have suffered.

We may also wish to use the Personal Data for our legitimate marketing purposes, and you consent to our disclosing the Personal Data for these purposes and to us using the Personal Data to contact the relevant Data Subjects about our products and services.

Your Personal Data will not be retained for any longer than is necessary for the purposes for which it is processed, except as specified in the applicable law.

Where appropriate, your Personal Data will be anonymised so that you are not personally identifiable.

(c) Transfer of information to third parties

We may transfer Personal Data to third parties located outside ADGM, for example and without limitation, for outsourcing purposes, to facilitate the execution of your requests, to provide services to you, to manage your relationship with us or otherwise for the reasons, and in accordance with the privacy procedures set out on our website.

This is provided that we are satisfied that: (a) an adequate level of protection for your Personal Data is ensured by laws and regulations in the recipient jurisdiction; or (b) adequate safeguards have been put in place by us to ensure the security of the Personal Data.

We will transmit Personal Data as described in this notice by means of mail, facsimile, phone, electronic means or otherwise. Electronic means includes email and the use of our own and third-party networks.

We will ensure that your Personal Data is processed in a lawful, fair, and transparent manner only for the purposes for which it was collected. You may, on written request, gain access to your personal data that we hold, and correct any information that may be inaccurate or incomplete.

We will endeavour to minimise the proliferation of your personal data and implement technical and organisational measures in order to reduce the risk of a potential data breach."

Form of one way letter for attention of Dealers/Brokers/Investors of SMBC only

We, SMBC UK are writing to confirm our arrangements for the investment business we carry out with you when we issue certificated of deposit and/or commercial paper.

Solely for the purposes of our product approval process in respect of any [certificates of deposit] [or] [commercial paper] (the "Instruments") which are issued by us, the target market assessment in respect of such Instruments has led us to the conclusion that: (i) the target market for such Instruments is eligible counterparties and professional clients only, each as defined in the Glossary to the FCA Handbook;¹ and (ii) all channels for distribution of such instruments to eligible counterparties and professional clients are appropriate.

Any person subsequently offering, selling or recommending such instruments (a "distributor") should take into consideration our target market assessment; however, a distributor subject to Chapter 3 of the Product Intervention and Product Governance Sourcebook (PROD) of the FCA Handbook¹² (or equivalent regulatory requirements, such as those existing under the EU's MiFID II³) is responsible for undertaking its own target market assessment in respect of the Instruments (by either adopting or refining our target market assessment) and determining appropriate distribution channels.

Please note that any Instruments will be issued by us on the above basis.

² Relevant types of distributors are described in PROD 1.3.1R.

3 Fees

The Customer shall pay fees to the Bank for the provision of Cash Management Services in accordance with the terms defined in this Agreement and the associated Schedules. The Bank may debit the account specified in the Service Schedule or, if no such account is specified, any account of the Customer with such fees when they are due. This Agreement does not affect any rights or obligations of any party arising under any other Agreements in relation to the payment of interest, fees, costs, expenses or other amounts.

4 Dispute Resolution

Should we be unable to resolve the dispute following mediation, or if we do not wish to use, or continue to use, mediation to resolve a dispute, either you or we may bring suit with respect thereto in the Courts of England. You agree that such courts have exclusive jurisdiction to hear the dispute, and agree not to file any motion or pleading seeking to dismiss the suit on the grounds that such courts do not provide an appropriate or convenient forum for hearing the dispute. This Clause is for our benefit only. To the extent allowed by law, we may take proceedings in any other court and concurrent proceedings in any number of jurisdictions.

Until we receive such notification we shall be entitled to treat the agent named below (or its said successor) as your agent for the purposes of this Clause 4. You agree that any such legal process shall be sufficiently served on you if delivered to your agent at its address for the time being in England whether or not such agent gives notice thereof to you.

5 Governing Law

This Agreement (including any non-contractual disputes and claims that arise out of or in connection with this Agreement) shall be governed by, and construed in accordance with, the laws of England.

Cash Management Services Agreement

General Terms of Use Schedule

This Schedule is supplemental to the Cash Management Services Agreement (the "Agreement") between the Bank and the Customer. Expressions defined in the Agreement have the same meanings in this Schedule.

1 Use of Services

- 1.1 You access and use our various Cash Management Services ("Services") through a number of gateways including our corporate Internet site, www.smbcgroup.com. When you begin to use a particular Service, you also agree to be legally bound by all of the terms and conditions stated in the Agreement applicable to that Service. You may select additional Services or delete existing Services in the future by informing us in writing. You shall use the Services solely to carry on your lawful business, and you shall not use any of the Services to process or facilitate "Instructions" for or on behalf of any Third Party without obtaining our prior written consent.
- 1.2 By using our Cash Management Services, you agree to the terms and conditions set forth in the Agreement. You understand and acknowledge that the Services are accessed through the use of various Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes, Digital Tokens or other Security Devices and that we are entitled to rely upon any "Instructions" provided or initiated by anyone using these Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes, Digital Tokens or other Security Devices and treat such "Instructions" as having been authorised and approved by you.

2 Utilisation of TPPs

- 2.1 Where you have provided us with Authorised Consent, Cash Management Services may be executed by you through a regulated and approved Account Information Service Provider ("AISP") or Payment Initiation Service Provider ("PISP") via our "TPP Interface".
- 2.2 Your utilisation of any AISP or PISP (as those service providers are defined in relevant legislation) to access or use any of our Services will be subject to your consent to the engagement of such a service provider and by which you will agree that we may transmit data about you, your accounts with us and any previous or intended payment transaction to that service provider that is necessary in order to undertake their services for you and to effect the services we provide under the Agreement. We shall be entitled to rely upon a notification of your consent for up to 90 days at which point it may be refreshed, or until the Agreement is terminated or until such time as we receive notice from you that your consent has been withdrawn, or from the regulator that the AISP or PISP is no longer approved. You agree that you cannot withdraw your consent whilst a payment is being processed.
- 2.3 When we transmit and receive data about you or your accounts or process any payment transaction to or through any such provider we shall treat any request or order transmitted to us by that provider as if it had been made by you directly. In such circumstances references to "you" and any obligation imposed on you under the Agreement shall apply to the extent necessary to ensure that the requested payment or service is carried out in accordance with the Agreement. For the avoidance of doubt, we shall not enter into any contractual relationship with any such service provider you engage and any such service provider shall not be our agent or sub-contractor. We do not accept any liability for any loss or damage caused to you, howsoever arising, in relation to any action, omission or breach of legal or regulatory obligation caused or attributable to in whole or part by any such service provider; the foregoing does not affect our obligations to you where an executed payment transaction was initiated through a payment initiation services provider and was not authorised by you and you have notified us of the error within the time limit specified in the Agreement.
- 2.4 The obligations in the Agreement imposed on you are not waived or modified by us if you engage any AISP or PISP. Full details on the Terms and Conditions which we impose on a "TPP" and their access to our "TPP Interface" can be found here: <https://developer.smbcdigital.com>
- 2.5 You agree that we may provide AISPs with access to information from your accounts held by us, for purposes of the performance of account information services, as frequently as we consider appropriate.

3 Instructions

- 3.1 Reliance. We will rely on the information and "Instructions" you transmit to us (collectively, "Instructions") provided in connection with your use and access of the Services. In connection therewith we will assume that any "Authorised Representative" or otherwise using these Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes, Digital Tokens or other Security Devices has been authorized to provide "Instructions" to us.

- 3.2 Use of Account or Other Identifying Number. You understand that we routinely rely on account numbers or other identifying numbers in executing payment orders. If you issue “Instructions” containing an identifying or bank account number of the beneficiary, we and all intermediary and beneficiary banks may rely on such number without inquiry of you or other verification, even if such “Instructions” contain a name or other information that may be inconsistent with such number. You will be obligated to pay the amount specified in such Instruction if it is a payment or transfer order. Similarly, we may rely on the identifying or account number as the correct identification of the beneficiary when we receive incoming payment orders. You agree to compensate us for any loss and expense incurred by us as a result of such reliance on such number in executing or attempting to execute your Instruction.
- 3.3 Cancellation or Amendment. If you ask us to amend or cancel any “Instruction” and your request complies with our internal procedures as in effect from time to time, we will use reasonable efforts to comply with your request prior to executing your Instruction. We will not be liable to you, however, if we fail for any reason to amend or cancel your Instruction.
- 3.4 No Action on Instruction. We shall not be obligated to act upon any “Instruction”:
- (a) which is not in accordance with our internal procedures (or those of any Related Bank, defined below), as in effect from time to time;
 - (b) for which we are not able to obtain any necessary authentication;
 - (c) which would result in a debit to any of your accounts with us or any Related Bank, defined below, exceeding the available funds in such account and any pre-established credit limit;
 - (d) which would exceed any credit or other limit established for you by us from time to time;
 - (e) which is incomplete or ambiguous;
 - (f) which, in our sole judgment, we are or may be unable to act on because of legal process, applicable law or regulation, or other government guidelines; or
 - (g) if, in our sole judgment, your financial condition is impaired or we suspect fraud or an unlawful activity may occur in connection with any Service.
- 3.5 Notice. If we reject or do not act upon your Instruction, we shall notify you within a reasonable time by telephone, facsimile, electronic transmission or overnight mail, but we shall have no liability to you (whether for interest or otherwise) or any other person by reason of any delay in providing, or any failure to provide, such notice or the requested transaction.
- 3.6 Verification. You are responsible for verifying that we have received your Instruction. We will have no liability to you in connection with an Instruction you attempt to issue to us which is not received by us.
- 3.7 Instructions Received After Cut-Off Time. If your Instruction is received by us after the cut-off time specified for the applicable Service or on a day that is not a Business Day, then the Instruction shall be deemed to have been received on the next Business Day.
- 3.8 Unauthorised Transactions and Breaches of Security Procedures. If at any time, you become aware of any unauthorized transactions being made and/or any breach of any security procedures, you must notify us immediately and without undue delay and in any event no later than thirteen (13) months after the transaction date.
- 3.9 Changes. From time to time, you may change information you have provided to us in connection with the Services. We may rely on the information previously supplied by you until we receive written notice of any change on forms prescribed by us, signed by your authorized representative and have had a reasonable opportunity to act on such notice(s).
- 4 Statements, Notices, Confirmations
- 4.1 Statements. We shall provide you with periodic statements and notices and, as applicable, transaction confirmations for the Services you use. You will be deemed to have received information made electronically available on the date the information is available for access by you.
- 4.2 Your Obligation. You agree to examine promptly all statements, transaction confirmations and other notices, which we or other banks send or make available to you. If there is a discrepancy or error (“Error”) reflected in any statement, notice or transaction confirmation produced by us and you fail to notify us of the Error, (i) in the case of any statement or notice, within sixty (60) calendar days of your receipt of such statement or notice or, (ii) in the case of a transaction confirmation, by the next Business Day after receipt of such transaction confirmation, we shall have no liability to you for any additional loss including, without limitation, any loss of interest, resulting from your failure timely to report such Error. If you notify us orally, you shall promptly confirm the notification in writing.

4.3 Limitation of Liability. You shall be entirely precluded from asserting any Error against us, and we shall have no liability to you of any kind for any Error, if you fail to notify us of such Error within sixty (60) calendar days after you receive the statement, notice, or transaction confirmation produced by us reflecting such Error.

4.4 Multi-Bank Statement Services. Periodically other third party banks or financial institutions may provide balance and statement reports to you and we may arrange for these reports to be made available to you through our Cash Management Services. By signing the Agreement, you agree that the Bank and its affiliates shall not be liable or responsible for, and makes no representation as to the accuracy, reliability or completeness of, any information contained in any such multi-bank statement reports provided by a third party bank or financial institution. The terms and conditions of the Agreement apply without limitation to the provision of such multi-bank statement services, including (for the avoidance of doubt) the right of the Bank to terminate such service at any time at its discretion as contemplated by paragraph 10.2 of Clause 10.

5 Our Retention of Records

We may, but are not required by the Agreement to, maintain records, including computer files and other electronic records, of any transactions, Instructions, communications or other acts or omissions relating to the Services provided to you and may retain such records for so long as we deem appropriate. Any such records retained by us may be made available to you, at our discretion, subject to payment by you of any costs and expenses reasonably incurred by us in doing so.

6 No Extension of Credit; Fund Transfer; Set-off

6.1 Your Obligation. If a Service involves a debit to any of your accounts with us (a “Fund Transfer”), you shall have in your deposit account the required amount of available funds to enable us to make the debit. Nothing in the Agreement shall constitute, or shall be deemed to constitute, a commitment by us to extend credit or grant overdraft privileges to you or any other person, nor shall any course of dealing between you and us constitute, or be deemed to constitute, any such commitment or grant. We shall have no obligation to make any funds available to effect any payment being made by or to you in utilizing any of the Services. At no time shall we be required to overdraw your account, even if we have allowed you to do so on one or more prior occasions.

6.2 All Items Subject to Final Payment. All non-cash deposits are posted to your account subject to our receipt of “final payment” from the bank or other person on which the item is drawn. If we receive notice that an item is being returned to us unpaid, or if we do not receive final payment on a deposited item, because, for example, the drawer has placed a stop payment or the item is returned “insufficient funds” or “account closed”; or if an item is returned after final payment, we will charge your account for the amount of the item, for any interest earned on the item and for our applicable charges, even if the amount of the item has already been made available to you and even if we do not actually receive the returned item. If the chargeback of a returned item or a bank charge creates an overdraft, you agree to pay us the amount of the overdraft immediately, and we may charge your account a service charge for the overdraft. We receive final payment for deposited items at different times depending on the location of the banks or other parties who will pay the items. In addition, our receipt of final payment may be delayed further due to circumstances beyond our reasonable control. If we must pay any fees to collect an item you have deposited, we will charge the fees to your account and we may impose a service charge for the collection. We may immediately, but shall not be obligated to, charge-back to any of your accounts the amount of any returned item or debit or credit entry, and you shall be liable to us for such amount until paid to us. If we credit your account for any Fund Transfer, the credit we give you is provisional until we receive final credit for the Fund Transfer through our Correspondent Bank or other applicable payment system. If we do not receive final settlement or payment, you agree that you must refund to us the amount we credited to you for the Fund Transfer, and we may charge any account you have with us for such amount. In such case, the person making the payment to you will be considered not to have paid you the amount of the Fund Transfer.

6.3 Set-off. We shall have a contractual right of set-off against your deposits and other property, now or in the future in our possession, for your obligations to us under the Agreement. We may exercise our right of set-off without demand upon or notice to you and it shall be deemed to have been exercised immediately upon any default by you without any action by us, although we may enter the set-off on our books and records at a later time. Any exercise by us of our rights under this Clause shall be without prejudice to any other rights or remedies available to us under the Agreement or otherwise.

7 Accounts

In performance of the Services it may be necessary for us to establish accounts on your behalf at other banking institutions with whom we have established a contractual relationship. Unless otherwise indicated in the Agreement, any reference to an "Account" in the Agreement shall refer to any of your accounts at the "Bank" or any accounts we have established at any other banking institution (each a "Related Party") for the purpose of providing the services.

8 Confidentiality

8.1 Your Confidentiality Obligations. All computer programs, data bases, equipment, trade secrets, processes, proprietary data, documentation, user manuals and related materials or information provided by us to you in connection with the Agreement are confidential and are owned exclusively by us or by the third parties from whom we have secured the right to use such items (collectively, "Confidential Information"). You shall treat the Confidential Information as confidential and not copy (except for back-up purposes), disclose or otherwise make the Confidential Information available in any form to any person or entity except to your employees on a need-to-know basis. Upon termination of the Agreement, you shall return all Confidential Information to us.

8.2 Breach. Any breach or threatened breach of this Clause will cause immediate irreparable injury to us and you agree that injunctive relief, including preliminary injunctive relief and specific performance should be awarded as appropriate to remedy such breach without limiting our right to other remedies available in the case of such a breach. We may apply to a court for preliminary injunctive relief, permanent injunctive relief and/or specific performance but such application shall not abrogate our right to proceed with an action in a court of competent jurisdiction in order to resolve the underlying dispute.

8.3 Our Confidentiality Obligations.

(a) We will treat personal and business information which you provide to us, and information concerning the accounts held with us, in the course of the Services as private and confidential. We may share this information with our affiliated companies. We may share necessary information with our service providers in order to carry out transactions initiated by you. We will restrict their use of such information for any purpose other than carrying out these transactions and providing the services requested by us. We may share this information when we are legally required to do so, such as with law enforcement authorities, or as directed by court order. We may also share this information to prevent fraud, with our accountants and lawyers as required for them to carry out their responsibilities to us, with our regulators as requested by them and for other similar purposes. We will not sell or transmit this information to third parties to allow them to solicit you or provide the information to them for their own independent use. We may, however, share selected information with our business partners in order to deliver products and services you have requested and in order to communicate with you about us, our products and services.

(b) Where you have given notice to us of your consent to use one or more payment initiation service provider or account information service provider to use any of our services you agree that we may transmit such information about you, your accounts that you hold with us and any completed or prospective transactions as is requested by any such provider or which we deem necessary to transmit to any such provider for the purpose of that provider undertaking the relevant payment initiation service or account information service. Such information will be communicated by us to the relevant provider in accordance with any applicable regulatory technical standards, but we shall not be liable for the subsequent retention, use or loss of any such information by any third party provider or by any of their agents once transmitted by us in accordance with the consent you provided to us.

9 Taxes

You are responsible for paying all taxes, however designated, levied or based upon the Services, but excluding taxes based upon our net income or assets.

10 Termination

10.1 Your Right to Terminate. You may terminate the Agreement at any time by providing notice to us specifying an effective date and time of termination (which must be not less than 30 days after the date of the notice). You will be obligated for all fees and charges associated with your use of the Services up to and including the effective date and time of termination. You may not use the Services after the effective date and time of termination.

10.2 Our Right to Terminate. We may terminate the Agreement, or any specific Service provided by us hereunder, at any time by providing notice to you specifying an effective date and time of termination (which must be not less than 30 days after the date of the notice). We may also terminate the Agreement, or any Service provided by us hereunder, immediately in the event you fail to fulfil any covenant or obligation required of you hereunder or under any other agreement you have with us or with any of our affiliated companies or if we determine that your financial condition has deteriorated or if required by law, or when your company is or becomes insolvent, commences negotiations with any of its creditors as a result of any financial difficulties, is unable to pay its debts as they fall due, presents or has presented against it in any court or before any relevant authority any petition, application or order for receivership, liquidation, administration or any similar procedure in any jurisdiction outside of England or an insolvency official (public or private) is appointed or becomes responsible for managing the affairs of your company. We may terminate the Agreement when all the accounts you have with us which use the Services have been closed. You will be obligated for all fees and charges associated with your use of the Services up to and including the effective date and time of termination. You may not use the Services after the effective date and time of termination.

- 10.3 Certain Continuing Obligations. Notwithstanding any such termination, the Agreement shall continue in full force and effect as to all transactions for which processing has been commenced by us and all rights and liabilities arising prior to such termination. This Clause and Clauses 4.3, 5, 6, 8.1, 12, 13, 15, 16, 17 of this Schedule, and Clauses 4 and 5 of the Agreement, shall survive termination. Save as otherwise provided by this Clause, all rights and obligations of the parties shall cease to have effect immediately upon termination of the Agreement.

11 Amendment

- 11.1 From time to time we may change the Services that we make available to you under the Agreement, including adding new or withdrawing any existing Services. We will provide you with written notice of any such changes to the available Services. Any withdrawal of a Service which we are already providing to you shall be governed by Clause 10 (Termination) of this Schedule.
- 11.2 You agree that we may modify the terms and conditions set out in the Agreement, including in any addenda, documentation and specifications relating to any specific Service, from time to time at our discretion. We will provide you with notice of any such modifications and a date (which will be a date not earlier than thirty days from the date of the notice we provide) when they will become effective (the "Effective Date"). You may elect not to accept the modifications, and in such event (unless we agree otherwise), you must terminate the Agreement or, in the case of any amendments to any applicable addenda, documentation and/or specifications, your use of the specific Service to which the modifications relate, and notify us accordingly. Your continued use of any Service we provide to you after the Effective Date will constitute your consent and agreement to the relevant modifications.

12 Limitation of Liability

- 12.1 Unauthorized Transactions. We shall have no liability to you for any unauthorized transfer made using the SCA and/or security procedures that occurs before you have notified us of possible unauthorized use. You may be responsible for losses resulting from any unauthorized use of the Services if you have acted fraudulently, failed to notify us of any suspected breach or if you act without reasonable care (which may apply if you do not comply with your obligations under Clause 3 (Instructions)).
- 12.2 Altered Transactions. We shall incur no liability for acting upon and carrying out the Funds Transfer Instructions we receive, even if the information we receive has been altered during transmission, regardless of the events or circumstances leading to the alteration, including without limitation, your failure (1) to access our online corporate banking Services using a personal computer on which virus protection software has been installed, (2) to update virus signature files promptly when updates become available from the manufacturer of the virus protection software, and (3) to immediately install updates to browser software as such updates become available from the manufacturer.
- 12.3 General Limitations on our Liability. You agree that the Bank, any of its parents, subsidiaries or affiliates, and any third party providers engaged by the Bank to perform any of the Services connected with the Agreement shall have no liability to you under or in connection with the Agreement, or any collateral agreement, whether arising in or caused by a breach of contract, tort (including negligence), breach of statutory duty or otherwise, save as expressly provided or contemplated in paragraph 12.4 of this Clause.
- 12.4 Indirect and consequential losses. In no event shall we (or any other party with whom we may be claimed to be jointly liable) be liable for any indirect, consequential, incidental, punitive, exemplary or special losses or damages, or expenses (including, without limitation attorneys' fees), which you may incur or suffer including, without limitation, any loss, damage or expense from subsequent dishonour or rejection of any transaction (including, without limitation, dishonour of checks or other items), whether or not the possibility or likelihood of such damage was known or contemplated by us.
- 12.5 No representations. We make no representations or warranties of any kind, express or implied, in connection with any of the Services or any software or equipment we may supply to you; any condition, warranty, representation or other term which might otherwise be implied into or incorporated in the Agreement or any collateral contract, whether by statute, common law or otherwise, is hereby expressly excluded.

12.6 Third Party Rights. No Third Party shall have any rights or claims against us under the Agreement.

13 Indemnification

13.1 Indemnity. Cash Management Services Agreement

Strong Customer Authentication Schedule

This Schedule is supplemental to the Cash Management Service Agreement (the "Agreement") between the Bank and the Customer. It defines the specific Terms and Conditions associated with the Strong Customer Authentication solutions provided by the Bank and your obligations for adherence for those Cash Management Services defined below. Expressions defined in the Agreement have the same meanings in this schedule.

1 Strong Customer Authentication Summary

Authentication is a procedure which allows the Bank to verify the identity of your Authorised Representative and confirm the validity of their intended use of a particular Cash Management Service.

Strong Customer Authentication (SCA) applies a higher form of authentication otherwise known as "Two- Factor Authentication" which requires the Authorised Representative to provide authentication composed of two or more independent elements from the following categories: knowledge – something only you know, Possession – something you have, and Inherence – something you are.

Under certain circumstances, an even higher form of SCA will be applied referred to as "Dynamic Linking" or "Transaction Signing". In these cases the Authorised Representative will also be asked to re-confirm details of a request submitted to ensure that this matches the details of what was received by the Bank.

The Bank continues to review and upgrade its SCA solutions inclusive of identity, session and transaction monitoring to protect you and the Bank, and to align with regulatory expectations.

The Bank will rely on such SCA as the Customer's authority to provide access to approved 3rd Parties, allow access to account information, authorise payments from the account, or other services made available to you by the Bank now or in the future.

2 Scope of this Schedule

2.1 Service Scope. This schedule governs your obligations for SCA when using the following Cash Management Services:

- (a) E-Moneyger®
- (b) TPP Interface (PISP or AISP)
- (c) Any other service the Bank may make available to you that will rely on such authentication and authorization.

2.2 Service Action. SCA can be applied by the Bank at any time and for a range of different actions but will consistently be applied when the following actions are performed:

- (a) Consent
- (b) Logon
- (c) Payment Approval
- (d) Other approval as agreed.

3 Strong Customer Authentication Procedures

3.1 Establishment of SCA Procedures. If required for a service, at our request you will establish appropriate SCA procedures, including the designation of Authorised Representatives to access and use the services and their use of Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes and Digital Tokens, which they must safeguard. Using these SCA procedures you will transmit information and instructions (collectively, "Instructions") to us. We are entitled to accept and act on Instructions if they have been authenticated by the relevant SCA procedures.

3.2 Purpose of SCA Procedures. SCA procedures are intended to confirm the authenticity of the Instructions you provide to us. We assume no responsibility to discover or audit any unauthorized disclosure or use of the SCA procedures or other breach of security by you, your Authorised Representatives, or any third party.

3.3 Use of SCA Procedures. You acknowledge that you have been advised of the various SCA procedures employed by the Bank, that you understand them, and that the Instructions you will issue to us under the "Agreement" will employ the SCA procedure suitable to your circumstances and the Cash Management Services being accessed or used.

- 3.4 Confidentiality of SCA Procedures. You must preserve the confidentiality of the SCA procedures that you, your Authorised Representatives and the Bank use in connection with these services. You should disclose the SCA procedures only to those Authorised Representatives who are required to know them. You must preserve the confidentiality and security of any Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes, Digital Tokens or other any other security devices and make them available only to the authorised individuals designated by you to use the Services.

4 Digital Tokens

- 4.1 To facilitate your interaction with SCA, the Bank will provide a Digital Token for each Authorised Representative which allows them to:

 - (b) Authenticate into the online cash management services provided by the Bank to you (as defined in section 2a).
 - (c) Provide consent to the Bank for access by a third party service provider (TPP) to your accounts held with the Bank.
 - (d) Sign payment transactions you have initiated from your accounts held with the Bank using these Cash Management Services (as defined in section 2a).
- 4.2 The Digital Token is purely for user authentication and transaction signing. It does not offer other banking services such as account reporting or payment initiation.
- 4.3 The Digital Token is provided as part of our service to you and is solely for the use of your Authorised Representatives. The Digital Token is not designed or intended for, and should not be downloaded or used by, individuals or consumers acting in their own capacity.
- 4.4 We will protect the communication sessions between you and us as part of the SCA Service using the Digital Token against the capture of authentication data transmitted during the authentication, and against manipulation by unauthorised parties.
- 4.5 You will notify the Bank immediately if you have received information on a Digital Token that is not meant for you.
- 4.6 You will notify the Bank immediately if you know or believe any of your Identifying Information, Authentication Passcodes or Digital Tokens have been compromised in some way.
- 4.7 You will follow all security measures and advices provided by the Bank.
- 4.8 We do not guarantee that the Digital Token will always be available and functional. If you are unable to use the Digital Token and therefore cannot access the Bank's Cash Management Services because the Digital Token or associated services provided are unavailable or interrupted we shall have no liability to you.
- 4.9 You understand and acknowledge that where you to utilise a TPP, it is possible that such providers will issue their own credentials (to be used by you in those providers' own platforms). These are separate from the SCA Service and Digital Tokens described in this Schedule.
- 4.10 By entering the Agreement, you agree to the licence and liability terms, as listed in Annex 1 to this Schedule, relating to the Mobile Authenticator App.

- 5.2 Access to the Digital Token will be suspended if your Authorised Representative enters incorrect authentication details repeatedly.

6 The right to terminate SCA Services

- 6.1 We can terminate this Schedule or stop providing the SCA Service through the Digital Token at any time and for any reason. We may also change, suspend, terminate or discontinue any aspect of the SCA Service including availability of certain features at any time and for any reason. Where possible we will endeavour to give you notice before doing so.

- 6.2 You can terminate this Schedule insofar as it is applicable to you for any reason by giving us immediate notice. In addition, either party may terminate this Schedule immediately if the other is breaching any of its responsibilities under this Schedule.
- 6.3 On any termination of this Schedule, your right and those of your Authorised Representatives to access the SCA Service through the Digital Token will cease and we may terminate your access to the SCA Service through the Digital Token and invalidate all or any relevant access details to the Digital Token.
- 6.4 Termination for whatever reason of this Schedule will not affect (a) any rights, liabilities or obligations which accrued before such termination; or (b) any of this Schedule that is intended to continue to have effect after such termination.

7 Personal Information

The personal information your Authorised Representative submits to the Bank and that the Bank collects in connection with their use of the Digital Token and/or SCA Service is governed by our Website Terms of Use and Privacy Notice. We shall provide to you, subject to the terms of this Schedule and any relevant Documentation and Specifications (both as defined below), a data transmission service (the "Host to Host Service"). You acknowledge that the Host to Host Service is simply a means to transfer data from you to us and us to you and is not, in and of itself, an extension of credit or banking facilities or the provision of an account of any sort. The other agreements (including the Cash Management Services Agreement), schedules, documentation, terms and conditions which govern any such credit or facilities and the management of any such accounts including, without limitation, the crediting and debiting of such accounts and the instructions we may accept in relation thereto, shall continue to have effect and will not be affected by this Schedule save where necessary to give effect to its terms. We shall inform you of any discontinuation of the Host to Host Service with prior reasonable notice. In case of discontinuation you shall have the right to terminate this Schedule with immediate effect and without any compensation being due from us to you or from you to us. Your continued use of the Host to Host Service after the effective date will constitute your consent and agreement to the modifications. If there is an inconsistency between this Schedule and any of the addenda for the Host to Host Service the relevant addendum will govern.
- 1.3 Documentation and Specifications. Detailed procedures for the use of the Host to Host Service are contained in implementation documents ("Documentation") we will supply to you before you begin to use the Host to Host Service. This Schedule, the addenda, the Documentation and Specifications are intended to be read together. However, if there is any inconsistency between them, the terms of the Documentation and Specifications will control.
